TO PROVE that Mrs. Sheatsley did not crawl into her furnace, shut the door after her and burn herself to death, they have burned live guinea pigs in that same furnace.

Examination of the burned guinea pigs' lungs is supposed to prove for a future jury trial that the clergyman's wife had been killed before she was burned. If she was dead when burned, she could not have crawled through a furnace door, 14 inches square, to burn herself.

The fact that her skull was broken in several places, before she was burned, helps to weaken the interesting suicide theory.

BUT, WHAT ABOUT the guinea pigs, and justice to them? The sparrows, worth less than a farthing each, are all counted, and does anyone doubt that a guinea pig is as important as a sparrow? How does the machinery of justice excuse burning those little guinea pigs alive?

YOU COULD NOT call this a cheap country, but we do charge reasonable prices for our citizens. When a British official, Stack, the Sirdar, was killed by an Egyptian mob, England immediately collected two and a half million dollars, which will help solace the murdered man's family.

When Imbrie, U. S. consul, was murdered by a Persian mob, this nation politely requested an allowance of $60,000. A British Sirdar is more impressive, if you like, than a plain American consul. But is the difference equal to the difference between $60,000 and $2,500,000?

DON'T TRY to develop unnatural physical strength. In the first place it is bad for the health. In the second place, vitality used up by over-developed muscles is taken from the brain, which is more important in modern days than muscle.

Frederick H. Beasley, of marvelous muscular force, could lift twenty men. A despatch from Toronto tells of his death, only twenty-eight years old. He had written a book, "Why Athletes Die Young," and then added one to the number of warnings.

A HUMAN BODY has just so much vitality, no more. It can be turned in any direction you please, made to build useless, heavy muscle or used in mental and nerve force. Too much muscular effort deprives vital organs of the strength they need, and the over-developed athlete dies young.

We exercise to cause deep breathing, getting the residual air out of the lungs, to perspire and make the millions of pores do their share of the work, and to keep the body free from stiffness.

Beyond that, exercise, for a mature man, is wasted. Much more than that, it is dangerous.

THE REV. DR. FOSDICK says the people need an up-to-date faith. Some of them do, but many prefer the most old-fashioned religion. For millions, nothing can take the place of David and Goliath, the fig tree that withered when it was rebuked, or that "great fish," whale or what you please, throwing Jonah up on the beach.

THERE ARE TWO kinds of religious craving. One kind wants something mysterious, even something of which it can say, "I believe it, because it is impossible."

The other sort of mind demands a religion that adapts itself to the discovery that the earth is round, not square, "with the four angels standing at the four corners of the earth."

Why not gratify both cravings, old-fashioned, and new-fashioned, without fighting about it? The kind of religion a man wants is the kind that makes him a better man. Let him have it.

SPEEDING CAR UPSET IN PLUNGE

New Bedford Tech Boys Were on Their Way to Fraternity Initiation

New Bedford, Nov. 26.—Nine young fraternity men, students in the Bradford-Durfee Textile School here were injured early today when a speedster in which they were riding failed to negotiate a sharp turn, plunged down a gully, through a barbed wire fence and into a stone-dotted field.

The car turned a complete somersault.

Five of the victims are seriously injured. They are: Arthur McCann of Fall River, Francis Campion of Taunton, Thomas Grace of Taunton, James McArdle of Millbury and Alvin Drew of Middleboro. They are in the hospital.

The others injured are Harold G. Deane of Middleboro, who was driving the car; Albert F. Fyans of Swansea, James Giblin of Fall River and Frank Connors of Fall River.

The crash occurred on Beulah road, about two miles from the Fall River-New Bedford highway while the youths were driving to a frat initiation at Horseneck Beach.

FEDERAL JURY INDICTS CAR LOADING CONCERN

The first indictment of its kind in the Massachusetts District Court under the Transportation Act, was returned today by a Federal Grand Jury against the Universal Car Loading & Distributing Co.

The concern is charged with inducing David Kilman, an employe of the New Haven Railroad, to furnish the Universal concern with information regarding shipments of the Universal's competitors.

GIRLS MISTAKE MEDICINE FOR WINE; 2 DEAD, 1 DYING

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 26 (I.N.S.).—Mistaking wine of ipepac for light wine before going to a college dance Saturday resulted fatally for Margaret and Mary Morrison, daughters of a local physician. Both were dead today and Isobel McDonald of Toronto, who drank with them, is in a critical condition.

Tells Cops to Quit X-Word Puzzles and Radio

New York, Nov. 26—Cross-word puzzles and long distance radio are frowned on by the police department.

A letter to the force, written by Commissioner Enright and made public today, said:

"The men are spending too much time in looking up two-toed sloths and three-lettered Australian birds or attempting to tune in on Honolulu. I want them, from now on, to spend all their spare time in target practice. I am tired of hearing about half a dozen policemen and detectives emptying their guns at a crook, with no damage done on either side except that the crook invariably escapes."

THREE HELD IN SLAYING OF CASHIER

Walpole, Nov. 26.—The three men arrested for the Wrentham attempted ban krobbery and the shooting of its cashier, James E. Carpenter, were held for the Grand Jury on a murder charge in local court today. They are Celestino Madeiros of New Bedford, charged with the actual shooting; Alfred Bedard of Pawtucket and James Weeks of Randolph.

Statements alleged to have been made by the men while in Dedham jail were read to the court. Madeiros, in his allegede statement, said he thought Cashier Carpenter had a gun and that was why he shot him.

District Attorney Harold P. Williams represented the government, and former District Attorney Fred Katzman, Judge John P. Vahey and Attorney Costello of Pawtucket represented Bedard. The others were without counsel.

Miss Bertha White, an employe of the bank, described the entry of the three men, two of whom she said had gunss. She said to the best of her knowledge there was no weapon in the bank.

Medical Examiner Andrew H. Hodgdon, who performed an autopsy on the body of Cashier Carpentier, said there were two bullets in the body and described the course of them.

2 BAY STATE MILLS CUT WAGES 10 PER CENT.

Springfield, Nov. 26.—Two western Massachusetts mills announced wage cuts of 10 per cent. effective December 1. The Otis company of Ware posted notices to that effect in piece goods department and the Warren Cotton Mills of Ware announced the reduction would apply to all departments. No other departments of the Otis mills are affected by the cut.

DR. GRANT REJECTED MRS. LYDIG

Tells How Affair With Divorcee Left Him Ill and Penniless

New York, Nov. 26.—Percy Stickney Grant, former rector of the Church of the Ascension, gave to a Universal Service reporter the exclusive story of the events in the last year of his life which have led him close to death's door and, in the shape of slanderous rumors, face to face with a bankruptcy of an undefiled reputation.

"Simple Christianity and the remnants of an old affection oblige me still to withhold the name of the person responsible for the dastardly attack on my character," said Dr. Grant. "But a respect for truth, however, it may sear, obliges my free discussion of the events which may have bred the hatred of which I am now the object."

OPENS SECRET PAGES.

Dr. Grant, opening the book of his life at its most secret pages, gave the unwritten chapter of his autobiography which starts last year while he was still betrothed to Mrs. Rita Acosta Lydig and resolved to marry her over the protest of the bishop, William T. Manning, of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. He continued:

"For several years, Mrs. Lydig, commanding me to consider her fortune as my own, had persisted in an offer to have my country place in Bedford Village transformed into a mansion modelled after a French chateau. She eagerly consulted with me over architectural plans which she said had been drafted and which estimated the probable cost of alterations at $32,000.

"Vainly, I tried to dissuade her. I pleaded that my peculiar position forbade acceptance of such favors. We seemed then to be in an impasse about our contemplated marriage. Twice divorced, Mrs. Lydig, as you know, was refused the marriage sacrament by Bishop Manning. It seemed that we might never be married—a sufficient reason for my refusing the offer to have my house turned into a palace too magnifi-

Stone's Woman Aide Opposes Harris

WOMAN IN DRIVE ON HARRIS

Mrs. Willebrandt, Stone's Aid, Inspires the Move to Oust U. S. Attorney Here

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney-general in charge of liquor law enforcement, is the power behind what appears to be a move to oust Robert O. Harris, United States district attorney in Boston, his friends charged today.

They held her responsible for the order from Attorney-General Harlan F. Stone instructing Judge Harris to suspend all action in the case of defendants in the Salisbury Beach rum conspiracy.

From Washington, however, there came, unofficially, the explanation that the order was intended to make the testimony of those already convicted available in the case against those yet to come to trial.

EXPLAINS CHANGE.

It was pointed out that this testimony would be far more dependable and valuable if the imposition of sentence were delayed until it had been given.

Friends of Judge Harris assert that if Mrs. Willebrandt is not actually a member of the Anti-Saloon League, she works hand in glove with that ultra-dry organization and has already forced the resignation of no less than six other U. S. Attorneys.

Meanwhile speculation is rife as to what official explanation will follow the sharp telegraphic order. Shoud Judge Harris be forced out, it is said in the Federal building today, two of his seven assistants are virtually certain to resign in sympathy. They are Joseph V. Carroll and Essex S. Abbott, both staunch Harris men.

A third of his ardent supporters, John V. Sullivan, has already resigned, effective January 1, to become Assistant District Attorney of Norfolk and Plymouth counties.

It was regarded as unlikely that the U. S. district attorney would resign at least without awaiting more specific word than was contained in the brusque telegram which halted proceedings and caused a sensation in the court.

PROMINENT IN G. O. P.

Judge Harris enjoys the confidence of members of the local judiciary, his friends say. He resigned his post on the Superior Court bench to go to Congress. He was one of the founders of the Massachusetts Republican Club.

The last Federal Grand Jury returned more than 320 liquor indictments in one month, friends of the U. S. attorney pointed out as a result of the activities of Judge Harris' office and the U. S. attorney.

UNCLE IS CAPTURED; LYNCHING FEARED

Bodies of Children Found in Shack of War Veteran; Slain With Rifle

Houlton, Me., Nov. 26.—Victims of one of the worst crimes the North Country has ever known, the lifeless and bleeding forms of two girls were found in a shack on the shores of Grand Lake, N. B., about twenty miles from here.

They were Neotia and Cynthia Foster, 10 and 14 years old, respectively, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Foster of Fosterville, N. B. Their hands were tied and there were bullet holes through their heads.

The children's uncle, Harry Williams, 35-year-old Canadian war veteran, was captured after an all-night search by neighbors early today. He is owner of the shack where the bodies were found.

LYNCHING FEARED.

Because of the intense feeling aroused by the crime, and the fact there is no jail or sheriff in the hamlet, it was feared that Williams would be lynched.

Fosterville is in the woods across the Maine line, and about a mile from the shack on the shore of Lake Grand in which Williams lived.

He supported himself by hunting, trapping and doing a little farming, having taken up government land.

According to the parents of the girls, Williams sent for them to do some cooking for him. Returning from school they received the message, and were told by their mother to get home before dark.

SEARCH BY FATHER.

Hand in hand the sisters set off for their uncle's shack, after promising to return in a short time.

When darkness fell the children had not returned. The parents were not alarmed at first.

As the hours drew on and the sisters failed to appear Mr. and Mrs. Foster became nervous, and eventually the father set out to look for them.

Arriving at the Williams shack he knocked but received no answer. Entering, he struck a match and lighted a lamp.

Its rays revealed a shocking sight. Thrust under the bunk, her hands tied behind her, was the body of the younger sister. Lying on the [illegible] her hands also bound, and with a

FEAR BOAT AND $400,000 WHISKEY LOST

New York, Nov. 26.—Eleven members of a rum-runner's crew, their boat and its $400,000 whiskey cargo are believed to have been lost in one of the storms that have been sweeping the Atlantic. The tug William Maloney, it is thought, has gone down with all hands somewhere between New London and Newport. The craft was said to have 10,000 cases of whiskey aboard.

bullet wound in the head was the body of the other girl. Both had been attacked and then shot with a rifle. Williams was missing. There were two cartridge shells on the floor.

The stunned father dragged himself from the shack and gave the alarm.

A message was sent to the nearest sheriff, at Frederickton, many miles away, and a posse of neighbors was formed.

All night they beat the woods and thickets in a vain search for Williams. Early today Mrs. Mary Kinney, living on the outskirts of Foxterville, saw a man lurking behind her barn. She notified neighbors, who hurried to the barn. As they appeared Williams stepped out of the woods and surrendered.

The posse was informed of the capture and took charge of Williams to hold him pending the arrival of the sheriff from Frederickton. In the meantime feeling ran high and it was feared that the townspeople would take the law into their own hands.

STUDENT DETECTIVE GETS TWO HOLDUP MEN

New York, Nov. 26.—An attempted holdup by three men of the patrons of a restaurant on the West Side today was thwarted by the daring of John T. Burk, who was put on patrol duty to "see what he could do." He wounded two of the men after a close-range pistol duel, and, with the aid of Patrolman Raphael Santori, arrested them. The third gunman, though wounded, escaped. Burk said that while trying doors he saw the restaurant patrons standing up with their hands raised. Entering, he was confronted by three men. Burk closed upon Robert McAvoy, who fired at him twice. The student-detective returned the fire and McAvoy fell.

WOMAN URGES OUSTING OF HARRIS

with the drys urging him on, on one side is up against the fact that the courts are congested with liquor cases and that he naturally cannot devote all his activities for dry law enforcement.

Acting United States Attorney Essex Abbott declared today that since the present Grand Jury began its work on September 9, it had considered more cases than any other previous Grand Jury in the history of the Massachusetts Federal District Court.

More than 400 liquor cases alone considered, these composing nearly 90 per cent. of the total.

MORTON'S ATTITUDE.

Furthermore, Federal Judge James M. Morton recently criticized some of the indictments because they came to him based on trivial grounds. He told the Grand Jury:

"Of course, it is for you gentlemen to say, but I notice one indictment for selling two ounces of alcoholic liquor. This seems to me a small matter to warrant the attention of the Federal Court."

The Federal Grand Jury today in a formal statement recorded its "amazement at charges contained in the press" concerning Harris.

The Grand Jury issued its statement upon completing its term of duty and it was signed by Carl Dreyfus, foreman, and H. J. Ford, clerk. It read:

"Upon completing its term of service, which began September 29, 1924, the Federal Grand Jury wishes to express its appreciation to United States District Attorney Harris and his several assistants for fair, energetic, yet impartial presentation of the law and the cases considered.

"The Grand Jury further wishes to record its amazement at charges contained in the morning press concerning Judge Harris, and to say that its intimate experience with him in the jury room offers basis for nothing but commendation for his fair, forceful and conscientious presentation of the law."

The statement was read before Federal Judge Peters.

CLIMAX OF ATTACKS.

The action of Washington is regarded by several officials as a climax to the situation resulting from severe criticism both in this State and in the national capital regarding the prosecution of liquor cases by Judge Harris' office.

One of the bitterest attacks on the United States attorney was made some months ago by the Anti-Saloon League of Massachusetts.

From Washington came word today that Attorney-General Stone [illegible] ready to name deputies [illegible] to take over the prosecution of liquor cases now pending in Boston and to clean up the situation in the U. S. District Attorney's office here.

One official was authority for the statement that Attorney-General Stone feels that Judge Harris' office has shown utter incompetency in handling liquor cases, that the best interests of the government have been subordinated and that the office showed absolute lack of knowledge of the rudiments of criminal procedure.

Mrs. Willebrandt under the regime of Attorney-General Daugherty recommended to him that Harris be requested to resign because of the laxity in prosecution of liquor cases.

The matter was brought to the attention of President Coolidge, but no steps were taken.

EGYPTIAN UNITS OF ARMY QUIT THE SUDAN

British Brigade With Fixed Bayonets Parade Again Through Cairo

Khartoum, Sudan, Nov. 26.—The Egyptian units of the Egyptian army have received orders to evacuate the Sudan at once. The fourth battalion already has left.

Cairo, Nov. 26 (A.P.)—The entire Cairo brigade of British troops again paraded the streets of the European native quarters with fixed bayonets today.

London, Nov. 26.—The British government's handling of the Egyptian situation has created a confident feeling here in financial and stock exchange circles which had been somewhat disturbed by the recent news of the sirdar's assassination. The prices of Egyptian securities on the stock exchange had sagged slightly, but the promptness with which Lord Allenby acted at the instigation of the British government has brought about a general recovery.

PASTOR CLOSED FURNACE WITH WIFE INSIDE

Columbus, O., Nov. 26 (I.N.S.)—With the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley and his four children scheduled to return home here today, County Prosecutor John R. King, investigating the Bexley furnace death mystery, was expected to re-examine all five.

The Sheatleys were to arrive here from Paris, O., Mrs. Sheatley's girlhood home, where they had stayed since the tragedy.

Questioning of the minister has brought out that, after viewing the body of his wife in the parsonage furnace, he closed the doors and went outside the house to call a neighbor, without attempting to smother the flames or reclaim the body.

It was believed Clarence, the sixteen-year-old son, would be interrogated again concerning his leaving the house to play football after finding what he said he believed might be his mother in the furnace.

The elder Sheatsley probably will be called upon to explain why he reported smelling an odor resembling carbolic acid as he passed the furnace room window a few minutes before finding the body.

Authorities want to know what became of the bottle of carbolic acid that the Sheatsleys were unable to find the day of the tragedy, but which detectives later found in its usual place in the medicine cabinet. [illegible] has upset the case.

When ashes were removed from the furnace after the charred remains were found a piece of glass, then believed to be a piece of the carbolic acid bottle, was found.

The prosecutor said the Sheatsleys would be quizzed as to their motive for not revealing the visit of Mrs. Gladys Redelfs the afternoon of the tragedy. Mrs. Redelfs, wife of the Rev. Lammert Redelfs, a friend of the Sheatsleys, was the last person outside the family to see Mrs. Sheatsley alive.

WEST END TRIO BATTLE WITH BLACKJACKER

Out of a crowded hour in the West End today emerged, gory but jubilant, Stephen Spolka and John and William Capoka—and in company of two large policemen, one Samuel Cyokodika of Boston, Chicago, Bangor and Poland.

From the gutter, the policemen retrieved a limp and jaded blackjack, remnant of a hard fought battle against odds, but a battle declared of the wielder's choosing.

At the Joy street station, Samuel, who has a West End address at No. 73 Brighton street, was booked on a charge of assault with intent to rob.

According to the police, Samuel drew a long bow at $260 that Spolka, a tailor at No. 7 Minot street, was rash enough to count within eyeshot of the stranger.

Samuel knew enough to be aware of Spolka's home address, so he hurried to No. 129 Brighton street, police charge, and there awaited the opportune moment.

In the professional term, Samuel took eight lusty whacks at Spolka with the blackjack when the tailor hove in view, but Stephen danced tantalizingly away each time, saving wear and tear both on the blackjack and himself.

Then came reinforcements in the persons of John and William Capoka, brothers, who allied themselves with Spolka. Next came the police—and the furious battle was over, but not until the three allies had been badly bashed by the flailing blackjack.

YOUNG BANDITS GET $175 IN BACK BAY CAFE

Police throughout Greater Boston have been furnished with descriptions of three youthful thieves who looted a Back Bay restaurant cashier's cage of $175.

George M. Bartell of No. 27 Union Park street, South End, cashier at the Waldorf restaurant at No. 226 Huntington avenue, Back Bay, was unsuspicious when a young man, apparently intoxicated, and two companions, entered the restaurant.

While Bartell was busy pulling cigar boxes from the case to show the customer, the other two roamed about the cash register, opened the strong box by pushing a key and then fled with a roll of bills they grabbed from a compartment in the register. The supposed inebriate straightened up and ran from another door.

PRINCESS, PICKING FLOWERS, IS DROWNED

GIRL ADMITS SHE ROBBED STORES

In Confession She Implicates Another and Says That a Child, 10, Aided

[illegible], Nov. 26.—That Lowell stores have been the victims of wholesale thefts by two Nashua, N. H., girls was revealed today as a result of a visit to Nashua by Captain David Petrie and Sergeant [illegible] Dwyer.

Warrants will be issued for the girls, Annie May Beathrow, seventeen years old, and Irene Dufour, fourteen, charging them with larceny.

The police of Nashua saw a girl leave several large boxes in a lunch wagon. They investigated and found in the packages dresses, sandals, children's shoes, silk underwear, phonograph records, toilet goods and various other articles. They traced the girl, Annie Beathrow, who they say broke down and confessed and implicated her companion.

She said her ten-year-old sister had aided the thefts, frequently going into stores and carrying off articles which she turned over to the two girls waiting outside.

The Beathrow girl first said that the articles had been given to her by a Chelsea girl.

14 CONVICTED IN $6,000,000 STOCK FRAUD

Indianapolis, Nov. 26.—The fate of fourteen of the defendants in the Hawkins Mortgage Company mail conspiracy case convicted by a jury in Federal Court on all sixteen counts of the indictment against them rests with Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger, who will pass sentence today. Two of the defendants, John A. Clark and Charles E. Succop of Pittsburgh, Pa., were found not guilty.

The government testimony was that the defendants, with Morton S. Hawkins, fugitive head of the company, sold approximately $6,000,000 in worthless stock to investors over the country by means of a campaign carried on through the mails. It was alleged the stock, sold for 65 a share, was not worth a cent.

CHANGES NAMES, BUT RETAINS THE HYPHEN

London, Nov. 26.—Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame, president of the Board of Trade, is going to do away with both his names, but keep the hyphen. He will need it to link up the two new names he has decided to adopt. Hereafter he will be known as Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister. His mother-in-law, daughter of Lord Masham, inherited a large part of his lordship's $6,000,000. She willed it large to the Lloyd-Greames, but stipulated the recipients must adopt the name Cunliffe-Lister, the family name of Lord Masham.

MAINE BOY HUNTERS UNEARTH SKELETON

Calais, Me., Nov. 26.—Officials today were investigating the discovery of the skeleton of a boy, about 12 years of age, by two boys while rabbit hunting near an old stone wall a mile back in the woods from Milltown. They thought it must have lain there about three years. Inquiries were being made to discover what boy might be missing.

Are you buying Europe's bonds now? If so, do you expect to get your money back, with interest, and principal? You probably won't get it.

And write this on your [illegible]: The bankers that peddle these bonds to you are not buying them, to keep. They [illegible] the bonds, hand them to you, and keep only their rake-off.

WHY SHOULD the bonds not be paid?

Why is Europe demanding a reduction of two-thirds on money lent by this government? "Because of the unusual circumstances of the loans."

Americans are getting Europe's bonds, paying seven per cent. interest, sold at 94 cents on the dollar. That means thirteen per cent. interest the first year. And that is the kind of usury that ought to put the lender in jail.

He won't go to jail, but he'll pay the milder and well established penalty. He won't get his money back.

Usury will be the "unusual circumstances" to be pleaded. A little later. Today's bond buyers will be told "first we'll deduct that 13 per cent. you made us pay the first year. That will make the bonds worth 87. Then as we're entitled to credit at three and a half per cent., we deduct from your claim one-half the 7 per cent. paid you plus compound interest. That does not leave much."

YESTERDAY Mrs. Coolidge christened the ZR-3, changing the great air boat's name to Los Angeles.

In years to come Los Angeles, with fifteen or twenty millions of population will keep a model of ZR-3 in some museum. And children will see "the tiny little flying machine that used to be called big."

Flying ships will be built big enough to carry ZR-3 as part of the equipment.

THANKS TO the Mellon-Coolidge economy program, the cost of government will be cut below one billion, eight hundred millions, for next year.

That would seem high, to those that once protested against a government spending one billion in two years, but the war has changed all that.

Such reductions as the President and Secretary Mellon have accomplished seem almost miraculous, as compared with the merry outpouring in the Democratic days, following the war.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD TURNS DOWN TEMPLETON

The State Civil Service Commission announced its refusal to approve Mayor Curley's appointment of James T. Templeton as superintendent of buildings for the city of Boston. The place has been without an official head since the sudden death of Fred J. Kneeland several months ago. Mayor Curley has submitted to the Civil Service Commission four other appointees for this place, all of whom were refused confirmation.

BOY, 11, ACCUSED OF SLAYING PLAYMATE

Penn Yan, N. Y., Nov. 26.—An eleven-year-old boy, Joseph Scarapicchia, is in jail today charged with murder, second degree, as a result of the fatal shooting of Donald Morrow, twelve, while both were practicing with a rifle in a swamp. A death-bed story of the victim, in which he accused his playmate of shooting him when they quarreled, is responsible for the warrant. Authorities will bring the case before the Children's Court.

SON TESTIFIES FATHER NEVER WAS SOBER

Byril Bordeau Also Swears He Saw Mother Kicked and Otherwise Abused

Taking the witness stand in Probate Court today in behalf of his mother, Mrs. Marie E. Bordeau, Back Bay real estate operator, Cyril Bordeau, seventeen years old, corroborated the woman's testimony regarding the habitual intoxication of her husband, Frank E. Bordeau.

He is alleged to have drunk from one-half to a pint of whiskey straight before breakfast.

Mrs. Bordeau is seeking a divorce o nthe grounds of gross and confirmed habits of intoxication and cruelty.

The boy, who is a freshman at a New Hampshire preparatory school, testified his father was almost always intoxicated when he was at home. On one occasion, he said, that while they lived in a lodging house in the South End, he and his mother were forced to flee to the cellar because his father became violent.

On another occasion, he testified, his mother locked herself and him in a bedroom, but Bordeau broke down the door. The couple escaped, the witness said, by running past Bordeau and fleeing upstairs.

The itness testified he saw his father kick his mother and otherwise abuse her, and that he had seen black and blue marks on her arms. Nevertheless, the boy said he still loves his father.

Mrs. Bordeau testified her husband had been arrested for drunkenness and operating while under the influence of liquor, while drivig her car, in which she was riding with her son and parents.

On every occasion when Bordeau drove the car she testified he took liquor along and drank it. She said he was drunk almost every morning before going to work.

Martin Judge, a furniture salesman associated with Bordeau, said he had never seen him under the influence of liquor while at work. Under cross-examination, however he said he partook of many drinks with Bordeau in various saloons and "speakeasies" since prohibition. He started to name some of them, and the list grew so long the court shut him off.

Sixth of a series of advertisements regarding the telephone situation in New England

Fair Questions Answered

Q. The Telephone Company asks for more money. Is it because its operating expenses have been increased by the strike?

A. No. Our operating expenses are not now affected by the strike. Except for maintenance they are a little lower per telephone now than in 1920 or 1921 and only a few cents higher than in 1922.

Q. Is it because the Company makes excessive charges for depreciation?

A. No. Rate of depreciation depends chiefly on life of plant. Science has lengthened the life of plant and enabled us to reduce the rate in the last few years. It is now below the average in the United States.

Q. Is it because the Company is paying higher dividends?

A. No. We are paying and wish to continue to pay the same 8 per cent dividend that we have paid for several years. Unless we do so we cannot sell new stock and consequently cannot get the money necessary to meet the public demand for extension and improvement of service.

Q. Why, then, are higher rates needed?

A. It is because the business is growing and more plant must be built every year to meet the public demand; also, because old and worn out plant must be replaced with new plant in order to keep the service good.

Q. Why does this make the service cost more?

A. Everyone knows that construction costs are about double what they were a few years ago. Before 1920 the Telephone Company had been able to put in seven telephones with a thousand dollars worth of labor and materials. Since 1920 it has taken two thousand dollars worth to put them in. Every time we have to rebuild old plant, the new plant costs double what the old plant did. As the business grows, the plant becomes more complex and it takes more of this new high cost plant than it did of the old low cost plant.

Maintenance consists of labor and materials. When these cost more, or when more complex plant takes more labor and materials, maintenance costs more.

Depreciation expense must be measured by the cost of plant. When cost increases, so does the amount charged for depreciation.

We have to pay for the use of the money that builds this plant. When it takes twice as much money, we have to pay that much more for its use.

Since 1920, we have added 320,000 new telephones and have rebuilt the plant for thousands of old ones, but we have had no increase in rates (except a small increase in our toll rates), to cover these increased costs; consequently the seven telephones that have cost $2,000 are bringing in no more money than the seven that cost only $1,000.

400, LAID OFF AT NAVY YARD, WILL RESUME WORK NEXT MONTH

APPEAL OF MAYOR IS GRANTED

Scout Cruisers to Be Sent to Charlestown Ahead of the Schedule for Repairs

Here is good Thanksgiving news for the laborers and mechanics who are out of employment at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Mayor Curley today got a message from Secretary of the Navy Wilbur notifying him by radio that his request had been granted in regard to sending naval craft to be repaired at the Charlestown yard a month in advance of the time scheduled.

This means that beginning the first of next month the scout cruisers Detroit and Raleigh will be overhauled at a cost of $300,000 and call the immediate return to work of more than 400 mechanics who were recently laid off.

There is also a possibility of vessels of the Shipping Board being assigned to the local navy yard for repairs. This proposition is being made the subject of inquiry by the Secretary of the Navy.

The radio message received by the Mayor from Secretary Wilbur is as follows:

"Referring telegram November 24, scout cruisers Detroit and Raleigh are due to arrive at Boston Navy Yard during the first week in December for extensive alterations. The possibility of work there in connection with repairs upon Shipping Board vessels is now being made the subject of inquiry by me."

UNION THANKSGIVING BY ROXBURY CHURCHES

Churches of Roxbury will join in a union Thanksgiving service at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow in the First Church (Unitarian), Eliot square. The invocation will be given by the Rev. E. A. McPhee; the proclamation by the Rev. Miles Hanson; scripture reading by the Rev. E. B. Carlsen, and prayer by the Rev. Daniel Lyman.

Four "three-minute men" will speak on "Why I Am Thankful," with the Rev. Arthur T. Brooks presiding. The speakers will be Dr. Samuel E. Calderwood, Charles Sumner Walker, Jr., Gardner F. Packard, and M. C. Freeman.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE AT SCIENTIST CHURCH

There will be a Thanksgiving Day service at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow morning at 10:45. The special feature will be the lesson-sermon, organ music by Claude E. Saunier, a solo by Miss Lucy M. Van De Mark and testimonies for the benefit of Christian Science from members of the congregation.

NORWICH UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR RETIRES

Northfield, Vt., Nov. 26.—Professor Ethan Allen Shaw, for twenty-five years professor of mathematics at Norwich University, will resign at the close of the present semester. He will retire from teaching and devote his time to a large fruit farm, which he purchased recently at Somers, Ct.

FIGURES IN RECTOR'S COLLAPSE

Country home of Rev. Percy Stickney Grant at Bedford Village, N. Y., for alterations to which Mrs. Rita D'Acosta-Stokes-Lydig was to supply $32,000. When the romance between the former rector and the twice divorced society woman crashed, financial worry added to Dr. Grant's emotional upheaval. Now he is in a state of collapse. Inserts are of Dr. Grant and Mrs. Lydig. At left is Nelly Kelly, servant whom Dr. Grant defends from charges.

Wilbur Reveals That Gunfire Finally Sank Washington

Washington, Nov. 26.—Secretary Wilbur disclosed in a formal statement today that torpedoes, aerial bombs and gunfire had been employed in the tests made off the Virginia capes on the hull of the uncompleted battleship Washington, sent to the bottom yesterday.

The final tests were made by gunfire.

REVERE SCHOOLGIRL SWOONS AT HEARING

Miss Emily Kaplan, sixteen-year-old Revere high school senior, fell unconscious when she concluded her testimony before the Revere school committee, in connection with her charges against L. Leo O'Gorman, principal of the school.

Miss Kaplan alleges that when $10 was stolen from a fellow student of the high school, Principal O'Gorman accused her of the theft and had her searched by a female teacher.

Several days later, the missing $10 was returned by mail to the person from whom it was stolen.

2,637 CHELSEA PUPILS AID CHILDREN'S HOME

In accordance with their Thanksgiving custom, the 2,637 pupils of the Williams School in Chelsea donated groceries and foodstuffs to the Chelsea Day Nursery and Children's Home.

It was the largest contribution of holiday gifts ever made in the school. Principal Charles A. Du Bois directed and aided the pupils in making their donations, which were sufficient to keep an average family for a year.

THOMAS W. LAWSON

Has been in seclusion for a long time. I have it now, straight from the inside, that something big is going to happen. Like the careful general he is, he has kept his mouth shut, but under the surface he has been doing a lot of thinking. Within a week the public will be let in on something that will hold their attention for days to come. Remember, this is right from headquarters, over the straight road, with no detours en route. Keep your eyes wide open for an announcement of something that will rival the sensation born of Trinity. Don't take this as a clew! It isn't! Lawson floated Trinity and he claims it was cut down in its infancy by the System and Big Boodle before it was weaned. But this new "something" is stuffed chock full of health, with a husky wallop tied to each hand. There is no gamble connected with the coming announcement. It's a sure thing. The Band Wagon is all washed, polished and decorated, ready for the wise ones to hop aboard. It's a one-way Band Wagon, with the one way going up. Don't go short of it. If you do you'll have your regrets—and then some. And if the Smug-muggers press the button to their puppets in a wild scramble to get it on the clink of the coin, it'll be sleighbells for the Smuggers—'cause there ain't gonna be no coin for them or for Gobblecraws. Don't write or ask any questions, for the well is dry until the time is ripe to spring this new sensation. It's a matter of a few days—maybe less than a few, maybe more. Don't go chasing Thomas W. Lawson for information, because he don't give you any—or his band isn't known to.

LOVE TURNED TO HATE, DR. GRANT SAYS

cent for my fortunes as rector of the Church of the Ascension.

"However, at a moment when my trust in and affection for Mrs. Lydig were in the ascendancy, I authorized the alterations and the $32,000 contract was signed. Mrs. Lydig, I am sure, dreamed then only of a dwelling fit to house the graces with which her affection endowed me.

"That dream ended.

"For what I considered the greatest good I renounced Mrs. Lydig. The breaking of the engagement was ascribed to her. Officially it was her act. However, the break can be definitely ascribed to my religious scruples.

RELATIONS SEVERED.

"With the break naturally came a severance of all other relations, including the semi-business one of our joint interest in the consruction on my Bedford Village house.

"Mrs. Lydig withdrew her financial support of the project. I found myself saddled with a $32,000 contract and nowhere near that sum with which to meet the obligation.

"I left Ascension pulpit a poor man. In order to pay the contractors I had to scrape together all my savings and mortgage Beaver Lodge and other properties to the hilt.

"That I should now be financially ruined is a fact which I can face with what courage I have (although I believe financial worries are partly responsible for the present state of my health). But what is hard to face is the indubitable fact that friendships I once could claim are now turned to bitter hatreds.

ABOUT NELLIE KELLY.

Dr. Grant delivered his answer to the specific published charge that a contributory cause of his physical failing was undue regard for Nellie Kelly, a maid servant in his country home in Bedford Village.

Frankly discussing the latest report that his interest in Miss Kelly had progressed to the point where he had taken legal steps to make her beneficiary of his will—even to the point of a proposal of marriage—he said:

"A certain newspaper speaks of the woman as if she were a young girl. Why, she's forty-three or forty-four years old and has been attached to the rectory for fifteen years.

"I have never centered any more attention in her than in any other servant who has been attached to the rectory in my thirty-one years of service in the church.

"My duty was always to give each of these servants sympathy and interest.

"As for the report that I deeded this woman any property, it is too ridiculous to deserve comment."

NEWTON TELLS OF TRAPPING PRINCE

Bank's Counsel Charges Forgery of Robinson's Name on Check

London, Nov. 26 (Universal Cable Copyright).—New and sensational developments in the "Indian Prince" blackmailing suit when Montague Newton, who was paid $15,000 by the Midland Bank to return to London to testify, goes on the stand late today to tell of the goings on in Paris between "Mr. A" and Mrs. Maude Robinson.

Sir John Simon, attorney for the bank, already has drawn astounding admissions from Newton, Sir John seeking to disprove the bank's liability to pay Robinson $125,000 alleged to have been deposited for him. The bank is attempting to prove that this money was extorted from the Indian Prince.

Step by step Sir John Simon drew from Newton astounding admissions of his willing complicity in the deep laid scheme to mulct the Prince. Newton said that in November, 1919, Mrs. Robinson telephoned him to call and see her at her Chapel street apartment.

"She told me," he said, "that Mr. A. was a great man and very wealthy and that his British aide-de-camp was very dissatisfied with the way he was being treated on account of the Prince's meanness. At this interview it was suggested that money could be gotten from him."

"Did she say how?" asked Simon.

"Yes. She said she was to be discovered in a room with Mr. A. and she then suggested that I play the part of her husband."

MORTIMER TO TESTIFY IN VETS' BUREAU CASE

Chicago, Nov. 26 (Universal).—With the jury which will try the Veterans' Bureau case in which Colonel Charles R. Forbes and John W. Thompson are charged with conspiracy to defraud the government completed, Elias H. Mortimer, former close friend of Forbes, is scheduled to be the first witness. Mortimer is expected to repeat his testimony before the Congressional Investigation Committee when he told of having delivered a check for $5,000 to Forbes while he was in the employ of Thompson.

SCHOOLGIRL, 15, TO BE BRIDE TOMORROW

Parents and Court Approve of Match With 18-Year-Old Boy for Thanksgiving

Webster, Nov. 26.—May Florida Barrette is only fifteen, a student in junior high school, and Wilfred Roy is still three years away from the voting age—but Thanksgiving tomorrow will see them man and wife.

A six months' romance will reach its peak tomorrow morning when the youthful pair were married, permission for the ceremony having been granted by Judge William T. Forbes of the Worcester Probate Court, following a conference.

Mrs. Paul Barrette, of No. 14 Park street, mother of the prospective bride, expressed herself as heartily in accord with her daughter's wedding plans.

Also in accord are the parents of young Roy, Mr. and Mrs. John Roy of No. 18 Boyden street.

24 PARTIES ENTER MEN IN GERMAN ELECTIONS

Berlin, Nov. 26.—Twenty-four parties and factions have put up candidates for election to the German Reichstag at the national elections on December 7.

The number of parties is at once a sign of the continued political disruption of the German people as well as of the beginning of their political consolidation. No less than seventy-five parties were in the fight at the last election in May. Only twelve of them were successful in electing candidates.

In spite of the number of parties, popular interest is very light in the election and the campaign is dull. The general trend, as shown by recent by-elections, seems to favor the parties of the middle and the Socialists at the expense of the Communists, the Ludendorff group and even the Nationalists. t

BARB WIRE FOILS U. S. SMUGGLERS IN CANADA

Montreal, Nov. 26.—Chief Inspector Dissailion of the preventive branch of the Customs Department revealed the use of several powerful searchlights, barb wire entanglements and 25 special officers at the town of Beebee, Que., to prevent United States smugglers from bringing into Canada under cover of night, contraband goods valued at about $200,000.

The little town of Beebe is on the Vermont border. The inspector said he established the barricade after he had learned that the goods, consisting chiefly of denim overalls, cotton gloves and shirts, were to be brought across the line and disposed of in Canada.

12,000 COAL STRIKERS NOW IGNORE LEWIS

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 26.—A telegram was received today from President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers by George Isaacs, acting district president, directing local union chiefs to lend every effort to have the 12,000 striking employes of the Pennsylvania Coal Company live up to their agreement with the anthracite operators.

The miners went on strike by direction of their general grievance committee without the authorization of the district officers. The strikers yesterday adopted a resolution to ignore any advice from Lewis or the district officers.

INSANE WOMAN SLASHES PATROLMAN'S THROAT

Doll Is Buried With Woman Who Cared for It Like Child

Andover, Nov. 26.—When Miss Lucy Burrill, Andover's oldest woman, who died Monday at the age of 96 was buried today, a large doll was buried with her.

Miss Burrill has cared for the doll for several years just as if it was a baby, even to getting up on cold nights to put extra coverings over it.

For some time she had been confined to the Andover Home for Aged People.

ACTRESS CAME HERE TO 'VIEW SCENERY'

Mary Miles Minter, erstwhile film star, and centre of a not-so-long-ago Hollywood scandal, whirled back to New York today following a mystery visit to Boston.

Alone and unattended, blonde Mary from Texas slipped into the Copley Plaza Hotel minus the fireworks usually attendant upon the arrival of a celluloid celebrity.

For thirty hours she conducted some sort of business in and about Boston. To an interviewer she averred that she had come all the way from New York to view Dedham's pretty scenery where once she was on location.

But film ladies—so it is understood—do not travel 232 rail miles to view scenery, and the mystery of Mary's visit is still unexplained.

Today she went back to New York alone and still mysterious, with her secret still locked up.

FRANCE CONSIDERING CAMPAIGN IN MOROCCO

Paris, Nov. 26 (A. P.).—Abd El Krim, leader of the Moroccan tribesmen who for some time have been battling the Spanish forces, has entered Chechaouen, about 35 miles south of Tetouan. French official circles are considerably exercised as to the outcome of the continued Spanish retirement from the Moroccan zone protectorate. France is ready to intervene if the absence of the Spaniards on the northern slope of the Rif is likely to cause trouble for foreigners in the Spanish zone or for the French in their portion of the protectorate.

OFFICER TRIED ON GARAGE CHARGES

Using Liquor and Improper Auto Plates Are Among the Specifications

Charges of untruthfulness, grafting, using liquor and using improper plates on an automobile were placed today against Patrolman Harrison A. Dugan, of the Mattapan station, when he went before a trial board of three captains at police headquarters.

As told by Captain James Watkins of the Mattapan station, his policeman came upon the new owner of a Talbot avenue garage.

"Are you the owner of this place?" asked the policeman, according to Captain Watkins.

"Yes," was the owner's reply.

CALLED CAPTAIN.

"Have you a permit to run autos across the sidewalk?"

"No, I overlooked that, but I'll do it right away."

"That's what they all say. But how about me?"

Dugan is alleged to have demanded $10, taking $2 on account. A few days later, on his day off, the urge to go riding came upon him and he went to the garage owner.

According to the garage owner, Dugan was somewhat under the weather, so he thought it best to call the captain and the skipper strolled down.

"Good morning, Harrison."

LEADS TO TRIAL.

"Oh, good morning Captain. Nice morning."

"It certainly is a beautiful morning, Harrison. What are you doing here this morning?"

"Oh, I'm about to hire a car. This is my day off."

But the car was not hired, or borrowed either. Instead there was a heart to heart talk, out of which today's trial emerged.

GRAFTON BANK MAN'S BOOKS ARE REGULAR

White Gowns Add to Charm of Buds at Coming Out Events in Society

By BETTY ALDEN.

THOUGH not all the debutantes choose white for their coming-out party frocks it's always nice to see the fair young members of the just-out contingent dressed in white at their debuts.

Very dainty was the white satin gown that Miss Elizabeth Taylor wore at the presentation ball her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Taylor of Beacon street, gave for her at the Hotel Somerset.

The debbies were there, very nearly en masse, and they and their cavaliers all seemed to be having a perfectly "working" time.

Of the buds who were present was Miss Ellen Frothingham, gowned in cerise velvet; tall and dark-haired Eleanor Mason, whom I consider one of the stunningest-looking debbies of the season, wore a lovely gown of gold-color satin covered with gold lace; Grace Cushing, whose parents gave a dance for her at the Milton home the other evening, wore a velvet frock of the new cranberry shade.

Dainty Theodora Ayer, who can ride a horse as expertly as many of the older members of Myopia Hunt Club, wore a charming white taffeta fashioned in the bouffant style, with touches of old blue and pink. Miss Ayer, it will be remembered, attended the dance that the John S. Lawrences gave for the Prince of Wales when the heir to the British throne paid his flying visit to the North Shore last month.

MISS VIRGINIA LEES wore to the Taylor dance a smart-looking frock of cerise chiffon, with a band of cerise marabou—so much the vogue these days—as only trimming. Over the dress she wore a gorgeous shawl of black and cerise.

This evening, by the way, Miss Lees' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Lees, are giving a dance for her at the Longwood Cricket Club.

OF the girls who made their debut a year or more ago who attended the Taylor dance were Polly Webster, wearing a gown of American beauty pink which set off most effectively the wearer's brunette coloring; Helen Stone, who's of the distinct blonde type, in a frock of jade green shot with silver and fashioned in the popular straight-line mode; Betty Thorndike, in a severely simple creation of powder blue silk; jolly Peggy Porter, in old rose moire with touches of black; Olga Frothingham, wearing orange taffeta with touches of gold, and Helen Swann, whose frock of orchid taffeta was fashioned in the bouffant style.

Miss Barbara Forbes' gown was of white, over which she wore a colorful cerise shawl—a costume most becoming to her brunette type.

Miss Edith Parker wore a simply-cut frock of cerise velvet, a rose of the same color adorning her blonde hair.

DEBUTANTE AT VENDOME SALE

Miss Elizabeth Patterson, among the debutantes elected to the Junior League this Fall, who, with a group of sister buds assisted at the sale held at the Vendome for St. Monica's Home. (Staff Photo.)

THOUGH the debutantes have their endless round of dances and luncheons and teas, they manage to find time for other events as well.

On Monday mornings during December, January and February you'll find all the Junior League members—including the debbies, of course—attending a course of lectures at the League's headquarters on Commonwealth avenue.

French literature of the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries comprises the subject for the talks, which will be given by Madame E. B. Gubanor, who hails from Russia.

Mrs. Sherman Thorndike has charge of the course, and among the patronesses are Mesdames Harvey Bundy, George P. Denny, Roger Griswold and Philip Weld as well as Miss Edith Parker.

With Mrs. A. J. George giving her interesting talks on current events at the League rooms on Thursdays, the "leaguers" have another interesting diversion.

Society Notes

THE Misses Ida and Ellen Mason are closing their Newport Summer home this week and returning to Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond of Gloucester are giving a dinner next Monday evening at their Winter residence in Washington. The affair is in honor of the ambassador of France and Mrs. Jusserand.

Mrs. Horatio Nelson Slater and Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, who spent last Winter in Boston, both took part in the tableaux vivants held last night in New York at the Plaza. The tableaux preceded the ball held there for the Co-operate, Incorporated, Home for Small Salaried Girls.

The Southern Society of Washington has issued invitations for a reception to take place Saturday at the New Willard. The honor guests will be the ambassador of Great Britain and Lady Isabella Howard.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cushing, 3d, and Miss Ethel Barrymore were among the prominent folk present at the musicale which Mrs. William May Wright gave in New York at her Madison avenue residence. The affair was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin S. Guinness of London.

Mrs. Bellows Robinson of the Riverway is entertaining at luncheon on Friday for her debutante daughter, Miss Anna Robinson.

Many society folk are arriving at Hot Springs and White Sulphur Springs for Thanksgiving. Robert Stowe Bradley of the Boston colony at Hot Springs played golf there the other day with Russell Ellis Sard.

A talk on "Building My Chinese House" will be given by Mrs. Francis Ayscough next Tuesday for the benefit of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary. Herbert M. Sears is opening his residence at No. 287 Commonwealth avenue for the occasion.

A number of society folk are interested in the two literary talks which Miss Heloise E. Hersey will give at the Longwood Cricket Club. The first, taking place a week from today, will be a review of "The Little French Girl," and the second, set for the following Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, will be on "The Word of Edith Wharton." The Girls' City Club will benefit by the talks, which will be followed by tea.

FRILLS FOR THE BIG DINNER

Even now it isn't too late to add an "extry" or two to what you've already planned for the big day tomorrow, and it is these little extra touches that often bring a dinner out of the commonplace class and established for the hostess a reputation as a "dandy cook"—

Let's start with the appetizers—a Scallop Cocktail is "different" and delicious.

SCALLOP COCKTAIL, RECIPE NO. 589

1 pt. scallops, 8 tbsps. tomato soup, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. white pepper, 1 tsp. dry mustard, 1 tsp. olive oil, 1 tsp. each finely minced parsley and onions, 8 drops tabasco sauce, 1½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce, 1 tsp. grated horseradish, 2 tsp. vinegar.

Cook scallops five minutes, chill and cut in halves. Add to the well-mixed sauce and serve in individual scallop shells on bed of cracked ice or in cocktail glasses.

Or, if you prefer the good reliable oyster (but only reliable when good) try—

OYSTER MAYONNAISE, RECIPE NO. 590.

Parboil large oysters, and remove tough portions. Marinate with French dressing, chill thoroughly. Arrange wide rings of green pepper on lettuce leaf, and fill with oysters, garnishing with thick mayonnaise for individual service.

Most of us are familiar with celery sticks stuffed with roquefort cheese, but far less expensive and very appetizing is a stuffing made from creamy peanut butter. Fill only the crisp white sticks and serve ice cold.

Here is a salad that is certain to whet your appetite for more goodies instead of satiating it as some of the heavier salads do.

NEW YORK SALAD, RECIPE NO. 591.

Four slices pineapple, ½ c. celery, ½ c. nuts chopped, 2 oranges, cream mayonnaise, lettuce.

Arrange slices of pineapple on nests of lettuce leaves. Cut celery in slender strips, one and one-half inches long, and mix with nut meats. Pile in center of pineapple and garnish with four sections of orange, free from membrane, laid symmetrically on pineapple. Pass dressing separately.

To serve with your meat course, perhaps you would like

ORANGE PUNCH, RECIPE NO. 592

One quart water, one cup sugar, juice of two lemons; juice and grated rind of two oranges. Mix, freeze and serve in sherbet glasses.

PUMPKIN TARTS—RECIPE 593.

Line small oblong tart moulds with rich paste, fill with usual pumpkin mixture. Serve individually with portion of cheese and cracked nut meats on each plate.

And to serve with your nuts and raisins

BAY STATE VOTE BROKE ALL RECORDS

Greater by 184,258 Than the Landslide That Elected Harding

An official canvass of the ballots cast in the recent presidential election, published today by the Governor's Council, shows that 1,213,396 voters went to the polls.

This is a record for Massachusetts. It exceeds by 184,258 the total vote cast in 1920, the year of the great Harding landslide.

President Coolidge has an official plurality of 422,658 votes over his Democratic opponent. Mrs. Edith N. Rogers of Lowell, wife of Congressman John Jacob Rogers, led the Republican presidential electors with a total vote of 703,489.

As recorded by the council the vote for President stands: Coolidge 703,489, Davis 280,831, La Follette 141,284.

The vote of the other State officers, as given by the council, follows:

Lieutenant-Governor—Allen (Rep.) 648,373, Cummings (Dem.) 413,898.

Secretary of State—Frederic W. Cook (Rep.) 636,915, H. Oscar Rocheleau (Dem.) 355,086.

Auditor—Alonzo B. Cook (Rep.) 518,341, Strabo V. Claggett (Dem.) 459,171.

Senator David I. Walsh was defeated by 18,588 votes, the official count being: Gillett 566,188, Walsh 547,600.

On the referendum questions the Baby Volstead act was accepted by a majority of 8,183; the gas tax was rejected by a majority of 265,829; daylight saving was retained by a majority of 65,480, and the child labor amendment was lost by 456,102.

SALLIES FEED 1,200 CHILDREN TOMORROW

The Salvation Army will give a Thanksgiving dinner to 1,200 needy children at Ford Hall tomorrow. The children will be treated to a regular old-fashioned New England dinner with cranberry sauce and fixin's, and as they leave they will be handed apples and candy.

Colonel W. A. McIntyre, commanding New England forces, will preside at the dinner and a program of music will be supplied by the New England Staff Band.

GOING TO SEE HIS MOTHER, CRIPPLE DIES

New Bedford, Nov. 26.—A short time before he was to leave for Hyannis to spend Thanksgiving Day with his mother, John F. Hines, 65, a cripple, was found suffocated today in his flaming bed at No. 1028 Pleasant street. At St. Luke's Hospital he was pronounced dead.

Hines left word with Wilfred Savoie, proprietor of the Pleasant street lodging house, to be called early, as he was to go to Hyannis for Thanksgiving.

Early today Savoie opened the door of Hines' room and discovered the bed in flames. The cripple lay in the smoke.

It is believed he was smoking in bed and dozed off, the embers falling and igniting the bed clothing.

Chronic Coughs and Persistent Colds Lead to Serious Lung Trouble. You Can Stop Them Now With Creomulsion, an Emulsfied Creosote That Is Pleasant to Take.
Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.
Of all known drugs, Creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.
All of the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.
Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.
Olive Tablets are merely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

NEEDY PEOPLE SEND APPEALS FOR BASKETS

Christmas Fund Will Brighten the Lives of Hundreds of the Unfortunates

Although tomorrow will be Thanksgiving, with turkey and all the fixings for most of us, it will be merely Thursday, November 27, for thousands of unfortunates in our midst.

The Helping Hand Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston American hopes to feed these unfortunates at Christmas, so, while you are preparing for tomorrow's big feast, why not plan to send the Basket Fund a contribution, thereby making yourself a part of this great undertaking?

APPEAL FOR HELP.

A woman who says her husband is out of work, writes:

"Will you please remember me in your list this year. This is the first time I have ever written you to help me, so please do not disappoint me if you can help it. My husband is not working. There is no work for him in Winter. I am a sick woman and I have a baby to look after.

A pathetic appeal from a widow follows:

"I am a poor woman suffering from rheumatism. My husband is dead, and I have not been able to do any kind of work on account of my illness. Hope you will send me a basket for Christmas."

HAS NO WORK.

A mother whose husband is unemployed writes:

"Will you please send me a basket for Christmas as I haven't a cent to buy things to please my three kiddies? My husband is out of work and it makes it hard for us. It will please me very much if you will send us a basket as it will make my children happy."

Three more parties in behalf of the Fund have been arranged. Miss Rutina Anderson has arranged a cabaret and dancing party in Odd Fellows Hall, Malden, for Wednesday evening, December 17.

Another entertainment and dancing party will be conducted in Knights of Pythias Hall, Stoneham, on Tuesday evening, Dec. 16, by pupils of Ivadell Maguire.

FUND TO DATE.

MORGAN'S TWIN STORY FAKE, POLICE DECLARE

Camden, N. J., Nov. 26.—Police holding M. H. Morgan, also known as Robert J. Crofton, on a charge of bigamy, declared today that he never had been any one else than John Morgan, husband of Frances McDonald Morgan and that he had concocted the story of impersonating his twin brother to forestall a possible bigamy charge after he married Miss Julia Walsh of Woodcrest last July.

"He is John Morgan and his story is a fake," Mrs. Morgan told Prosecutor Westcott. "I never heard of a twin brother until after I learned John had married Miss Walsh."

CHAPLIN ISN'T GOING ON A HONEYMOON

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 26 (I.N.S.).—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chaplin, married yesterday at Empalme, Sonora State, Mexico, will return at once to Hollywood, according to word received here today.

Plans for a honeymoon on a yacht off the west coast of Mexico have been abandoned by the movie comedian and his eighteen-year-old bride, who was Miss Lita Grey.

On their return here both Chaplin and his wife, who has been his leading woman since last Spring, will go on location in Chaplin's new film which is nearing completion.

BISHOP AND CURATE FINED FOR PROCESSION

Montauban, France, Nov. 26.—The Bishop of Montauban and the curate of the cathedral were found guilty of "disrespectful and disorderly conduct" in a justice of the peace court today in connection with a church procession the authorities had forbidden. Neither of the defendants came to court. The bishop was fined eleven francs by default and the curate five.

300-POUND FIRE CHIEF FALLS IN BATTLE

One Other Man Hurt; 52 Ice Company Horses Saved, but Roam Haverhill Streets

Haverhill, Nov. 26.—Fifty-two horses, released from the burning barns of the Merrimac Ice Company on Lawrence street today, roamed at will throughout Haverhill for several hours. Some were recaptured two or three miles from the scene of the blaze.

Two firemen were injured fighting the fire. One was District Chief Ernest W. Hapgood, who was off duty but responded to the alarm. While he was on the second floor, where the blaze started, he fell through the weakened floor to the stable below.

He weighs more than 300 pounds and the fall caused internal injuries as well as severe head injuries. He was taken to his home.

The other fireman hurt was Lieutenant Leonard F. Whalen, who was fighting the blaze from the roof. He was struck on the head by a large piece of slate and fell unconscious. Comrades carried him down a ladder and revived him.

The fire started on the second floor where 200 tons of hay were stored. It is believed to have been caused by a carelessly dropped cigarette butt. The barns were wrecked and the hay destroyed, but the offices of the ice company in the same building were saved. The damage is estimated at $10,000.

Passersby who turned in the alarm led out the fifty-two horses, but neglected to hitch them with the result that they were free to wander.

NEW HAVEN ANNOUNCES $23,000,000 BOND PLAN

New York, Nov. 26 (I.N.S.).—Acting upon the promised subscription of New England industrial corporations, as well as banking institutions and stockholders of the railroad, the New York, New Haven & Hartford lines today announced a new issue of $23,000,000 fifteen-year 6 per cent. gold bonds to pay off the $22,997,766 European loan due April 1, 1925. The new issue will be dated April 1, 1925. The railroad will create a sinking fund by which it is expected that over half the bonds will be retired before their maturity.

TANKER, ASHORE AT SALEM, IS FLOATED

Salem, Nov. 26.—The oil tanker Trinidadian, Captain Parta, with a cargo of oil from Port Arthur, Tex., which went ashore off Baker's Island, was floated today and was towed by three tugs to the Gulf Refining Company's wharf in Beverly.

The craft was floated after 2,500 gallons of oil had been removed by a lighter.

The exact extent of the damage to the plates on her bottom has yet to be determined, although she took in considerable water which required constant working of the pumps.

WATSON PLANS BAN ON INCOME TAX RETURNS

Washington, Nov. 26.—The first move to prevent publication of income tax returns was made today by Representative Watson of Pennsylvania, a Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, who announced he would introduce a bill to eliminate from the tax law that portion covering publication of the amount of tax paid by each person.

ACCUSED OF FORGING T. R.'S NAME TO CHECK

Washington, Nov. 26.—Andrew F. McDonald, fifty-nine, was held here today by the authorities on charges of forging the name of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., to checks. A specific charge of passing a bad check for $67 on a Washington hotel was lodged against him. Police said McDonald was also wanted in New York. He characterized his arrest as a mistake.

SMOKING IN BED KILLS NEW BEDFORD LODGER

New Bedford, Nov. 26 (I. N. S.).—John F. Hinch, sixty-five years old, was overcome by smoke at his lodging house here today and died on the way to a hospital. According to police, Hinch had been smoking in bed. Firemen confined the blaze to Hinch's room.

Real John Harvard Book Displayed at Widener Library

The one book remaining from the collection of John Harvard is on display today in Widener Library, the 317th anniversary of John Harvard's birth. It is among the hundreds of thousands of volumes that have been added to the University collection.

Other memorials of the college's first benefactor are on exhibit in the treasure room of the library, including the original list of his library as written in the college records, and facsimiles of documents.

$15,000 School Fire

Bennington, Vt., Nov. 26.—A school for boys at Old Bennington, constructed in 1919 at a cost of $15,000, was burned to the ground today. The cause was not determined.

STATE REVOKES LICENSE OF BROKERS

Auburndale Man Says He Paid for Stocks That Were Not Delivered

The broker's license of the stock brokerage concern of C. I. McLaine & Co., Inc., No. 53 State street, was revoked today by the State Department of Public Utilities.

Action was taken on the complaint of Ernest F. Henley of No. 307 Lexington street, Auburndale, who notified the department he had paid $125 for fifteen shares of stock which never were delivered to him.

The department also revoked the selling registration of H. C. Merrill, stock salesman for the McLaine concern.

The company closed its office and went to New York shortly after Henley purchased his stock, the report of the utilities department discloses. When Henley went to inquire why his shares were not forthcoming, he found the office closed. Letters written to him and by the State investigators were returned marked "Moved, address unknown."

Henley's purchase was supposed to be of the capital stock issue of the Baum Dairy Appliance Company.

Young Girl Afraid To Eat Anything

Girl's Stomach in Bad Shape. Couldn't Eat Until She Takes Adlerika

"I was afraid to eat anything because I always had trouble with my stomach. Was also troubled for three years with constipation. After taking less than one bottle Adlerika I can eat anything and feel fine." (Signed) Ardenia Howard.

Intestinal Evacuant

There is now offered to the public a liquid preparation which is not only a wonderfully effective and QUICK intestinal evacuant, but which also seems to stimulate the glands of the intestinal tract and to cause expulsion of flatus (GAS). This preparation, known as Adlerika, is a valuable agent for the purpose of cleansing the bowels of matter which has been in the system a long time and which other less effective means have been unable to dislodge. It is often astonishing the great amount of matter Adlerika draws from the intestinal canal—even right after a natural movement it sometimes brings out unsuspected quantities of additional matter. Many times it brings out much GAS, thus relieving pressure in the abdomen. Adlerika is especially valuable when PROMPT action is necessary or to encourage the elimination of metabolic poisons through the bowel.

In slight disorders such as occasional constipation or gas on the stomach and headache (when due to bowel inaction) a single spoonful of Adlerika often produces surprising and gratifying results. In cases of obstinate constipation or stomach trouble, if Adlerika does not bring relief in 24 to 36 hours the advice of a reputable physician should be secured.

Reports from Physicians

"I congratulate you on the good effect from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"Adlerika is the best in my entire 47 years' experience. (Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

Leadership

—the Natural Result of Original Ideas and Service Rendered

YOU REMEMBER---three years ago---how Brookside Stores smashed all precedents by arranging to supply New England homes with finest quality milk and cream at prices much lower than they had been accustomed to pay.

That was originality—based upon sound merchandising sense—a satisfactory profit to milk producers—a satisfactory price to milk users.

Then, last year—at Thanksgiving time and Christmas time—New England was awakened to the fact that its crying need for freshly-killed turkeys was to be met (and was met) by Brookside Stores—and at prices a great deal less than other merchants were demanding. We saved New England consumers nearly $2,000,000.00 by this Producer to Consumer effort alone.

That, too, was originality. And that, too, was service rendered.

Then—very recently—we made an attractive combination price on a perfectly balanced food ration—Bread and Milk—using the two most popular and highest grade loaves of bread in the city and our high-grade Brookside Milk (the 4% butter fat milk).

This was originality, and we like to boast a bit since other merchants so willingly admit our leadership in adopting ideas we originate.

In every field of endeavor, somebody always blazes the trail—leads. Others follow—some because of inclination, some because necessity forces them to do so.

Nearly every important Brookside accomplishment has had its flock of imitators — many in feverish haste trying to equal the competitive pace set for them by Brookside Stores.

But Brookside customers know that no imitator—no competitor — has ever successfully imitated Brookside quality at Brookside prices.

Quality stands first at Brookside Stores—

Low price is but the natural result of buying foresight, scientific planning, large-volume purchasing, sound merchandising, Cash and Carry distribution, wasteless management, and the willingness to accept many small profits rather than a few unreasonable ones.

Nearly 500 Brookside Stores—200 new ones in less than two years! That growth speaks for itself about New England's approval of Brookside originality—Brookside ideas—Brookside service rendered.

BEFORE TWINS WERE BORN

Was Very Miserable. Felt Lots Better After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Wyocena, Wis.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my twins were born because my sister used it and recommended it to me. I was so I could scarcely go about my daily work I was in such misery. But after I began taking the second bottle I was feeling lots better. I took three bottles and a half before I was confined and finished the bottle while I was in bed. I got up feeling fine and have taken care of the twins alone ever since. I recommend the Vegetable Compound highly and will sing its praises in the future."——Mrs. Ida Gerritz, Wyocena, Wis.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many mothers are left in a weakened and run-down condition after childbirth, and for such mothers the care of the baby is well-nigh impossible. Not only is it hard for the mother, but the child itself will indirectly suffer.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother both before and after childbirth. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and can be taken in safety by nursing mothers.

A recent canvass reports 98 out of every 100 women are benefited by

"SIS HOPKINS" OFFERED AT SOMERVILLE THEATRE

With Thanksgiving Day at hand it is doubtful if the Somerville Theatre Players could have selected a more appropriate offering than "Sis Hopkins," the delightful play which they are presenting this week. The work of Mary Ann Dentler in the title role was of a calibre to stamp her as a comedienne of ability. One of the big features of the evening was the superb singing of the Down East Quartette. Edward Clarke Lilley also gave an excellent account of himself, as did the other members of the company. Included in the cast are: Frank Thomas, Jane Stuart, Lois Landon, Phil Sheffield, Booth Howard and William Florence.

Censors Ban One Whole Scene in "Artists and Models"

The bevy of beauties appearing as principals and members of the chorus of the musical revue "Artists and Models," appearing at the Shubert, will hereafter leave more of their feminine charms to the imagination of Boston audiences.

The city censorship board, after witnessing a performance of the revue, issued orders that the feminine pulchritude, of which the show is largely composed, must hereafter be draped with more clothing.

The censors also deleted some of the lines which were regarded as improper.

John M. Casey, secretary to the board of censors, directed the show management to eliminate some objectionable lines from a sketch "Memorial Day" and to eliminate all reference to the manufacture of hooch.

Important to All Women Readers of This Paper

Swamp-Root a Fine Medicine

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.

BATTLE FOR "JANICE"

DUEL SCENE FROM FILM

The youthful Captain Mowbray (Douglass Stevenson) and Lord Crowes (Holbrook Blinn) fight for possession of Janice Meredith, bound and gagged, unwilling witness of their swordplay. Miss Marion Davies is delighting Boston audiences with her portrayal of the title role of the film play, now at the Majestic.

Photoplay fans who witness "Janice Meredith," now starring Marion Davies at the Majestic Theatre will gain [illegible] of many of the big spectacular scenes in this thrilling picturization of Paul Leicester Ford's thrilling story of the American Revolution. Had they been present during the filming of the stirring duel scene, one of the high lights of the picture, they would no doubt have readily reached the conclusion that a motion picture actress' life is far from being one sweet song.

During the making of the big screen epic of the American Revolution, the writer happened to drop into the Tilford Studios in New York while this particular scene was being "shot." Miss Davies was just being bound to a chair by E. Mason Hopper, the director. A rope was tied around her ankles and a kerchief was crammed in her mouth.

While the scene was being rehearsed Miss Davies had to keep the gag in her mouth and was hardly able to utter a comprehensible sound. For more than an hour she had to sit in a chair, while a fencing expert drilled Holbrook Blinn and Douglas Stevenson in the duel, which they fight so realistically before her on the screen.

At one point of the fighting the swords came so near to the beautiful star's face that measurements had to be taken to avoid the chance of an accident. Finally Director Hopper gave the welcome command for the lights, music and camera, and soon Mr. Blinn and his antagonist were busy with their clashing steel.

It was what one might call an intricate fight, inasmuch as every stroke of the swords had to be made according to directions. The two men proved themselves equal to the occasion and Miss Davies was eventually relieved of her bindings. In order to get this picture ready in time, Holbrook Blinn stated that Miss Davies and others worked through twenty-four hours at a single stretch.

Sore Throat?
Listerine Throat Tablets, containing the antiseptic oils of Listerine, are now available. While we frankly admit that no tablet or candy lozenge can correct Halitosis, the Listerine antiseptic oils in these tablets are very valuable as a relief for throat irritations.
They are 25 cents a package

No off-days for him
—on account of sore throat

A PERFECT record of attendance! More than most little folks can say during the cold, blustery, sore-throat days of winter.

Naturally, he's proud of that report card he brings home. And his mother is, too.

Both mother and son have a secret—which, after all, needn't be a secret at all. Simply let the children form the systematic habit of using Listerine, the safe antiseptic, as a mouth wash and gargle.

So often it will ward off a bad case of sore throat and the more serious ills that may follow.

Sore throat is a nuisance—and, usually, it is the danger signal of other troubles that start with throat infections.

Listerine, the safe antiseptic, will put you and your family on the safe side. So do not be without it. It has dozens of other uses—all described on the circular that comes wrapped around each bottle.—Lambert Pharmacal Company, Saint Louis, U. S. A.

Listerine is made only by the Lambert Pharmacal Company. To avoid possible fraudulent substitution, insist upon obtaining this antiseptic in the original brown package—14 ounce, 7 ounce, 3 ounce.

A Story of Flaming Youth

Heart and Soul of 1924 Flapper Laid Bare in Best Story by Author of "Chickie"

START THE STORY HERE TODAY

Margaret Meadows married Will Lee at seventeen. His dissolute habits soon made her miserable. The night he raised his hand to his two-year-old child in a drunken rage she slipped from his home with her baby. Margaret supported her daughter by teaching school in several villages, finally settling in Fairdale, where she met Andrew and they fell in love. But he was tied to an invalid wife and Margaret refused to let him leave her. Nora at 17 fell in love with Dane Herrick. Andrew's wife recovers and attacks him with a pistol. He says good-by to Nora Lee and gives her a packet of bonds. Andrew is killed in an auto accident, and his widow demands the bonds of Nora. Nora meets Maxwell Reed, who makes love to her. Margaret dies and Nora is left alone. Andrew's widow accuses Nora of stealing the bonds.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY

SHE saw him with the laughing eyes darkened when he told her how dear she was and wouldn't she look often at his picture and think of him? How he wished they could be married; how he loved her and what care he'd take of her and she knew all this—

She wiped her eyes. If she gave up the bonds she couldn't go to Dane. She couldn't have love.

She stared into the blankness and knew that it was encompassing her.

Lily's Visit.

Nora Lee knelt at the fireplace, striking a match to the newspapers. She watched the flames spurt about the kindling. She added logs and remained staring rigidly at the hot blaze, as though this fixity of hers would prevent tomorrow from coming; would banish the empty room and the shadows and the echoes.

As long as she knelt here and didn't turn, the familiar form sat and smiled. Just there Margaret would be reading. Presently she would kick off her pumps and stretch her feet near the warm stones. Often she would take down her hair and yawn. Then she looked so extremely young, so very languorous and delightful that Nora Lee used to say: "Oh mother, when you die you must will me that graceful air!"

On cold nights like this she used to heat milk and whip an egg in it and shake nutmeg on the top. They would drink it slowly, glad if the wind howled or a dog barked or rain scampered on the roof.

More Memories.

Two weeks ago it had been cozy and companionable like this. Margaret bargained: "If you get me my lilac robe, Nora Lee, I'll brush your hair." She always said "my lilac robe" as though she had several dozen of every different hue—but the lilac was the only one there was.

In these guises Margaret was now passing through the room. She was at the desk, at the fireplace, at the doorway. Nora Lee felt her mother's presence as though Margaret came close and leaning down, pressed her lips on her heart, leaving it covered with bright red wounds.

It was the first time in her life she had ever been alone through the whole night. She was rigid with fear, but she wouldn't admit this. She had reached the breaking point of her grief, but she wouldn't let herself cry.

She sat here adding to the fire, whispering to herself in stricken tones, admitting that she was going mad, but that wouldn't matter because no one would worry and mad people have no sorrow.

Then she said aloud: "I won't give in to her. I'm cleverer than she is." She went through the scene with Andrew's wife, for she was confident the woman was coming from Fairdale for the sole purpose of charging her with theft and forcing the restoration of the bonds.

Plans to Get Letters.

She felt stained by her interview with the detective; the thought of the money Lily Cornish claimed now filled her with revulsion. She wanted recklessly to be finished with it—wipe the whole affair out of her life.

But she had an idea that she must use craft. If she were to show the slightest anxiety — once let that white, ugly old woman think she wanted the letters—and she would rush away with that stiff, halting gait.

At any cost Nora Lee meant to prevent this. She must get her mother's letters—give up the damn bonds in a minute—

She thought of this till she was drained of emotion; even of her anger. She didn't then figure that the loss of the bonds would mean the entire breaking of her life; the surrender of every dream and plan. She knew only that she would not let her mother's love be violated—would not let this fiendish Lily Cornish gloating and moistening her wide, avid lips. She would triumph over this old woman.

A Bad Dream.

When finally she rolled herself up in a blanket and stretched out on the bare rug to sleep, the fire blazing and all the lights switched on, she dreamed that Andrew's wife took a brand and set it flaming in her hair, put her foot on her chest, compelling her to lie there and slowly burn to death. The old, childish notion that Lily Cornish was a witch was never completely routed.

She awakened at 5 o'clock, convinced that she had dreamed all night. It was stormy dark, with an impetuous rain sweeping the trees, leaving long streams of silver blowing from their branches. She thought of the rain soaking into her mother's grave—cold, penetrating rain going down through the sod. She cried.

If the rain kept up, Lily wouldn't venture out. But she wished her to come—be done with this suspense. She cooked an elaborate breakfast. She bathed and dressed with the greatest care.

At 10 o'clock a machine stopped, its brakes creaking stridently. The wild thought that it might be the patrol wagon made her pulses leap; made her think of dashing to the basement and hiding.

But from the middle of the living room she could see that it was a limousine—her—of course!

She whispered half aloud: "I'm ready!" and flung her head back . . . arrogant—contemptuous—indifferent—of course, she could outwit a mean brained old woman.

Andrew's wife was no longer in mourning. She wore a smart sealskin coat with a girlish black hat trimmed with white camellias. Her lips were rouged and her eyebrows darkened. The makeup gave her a smudgy, ghastly kind of youngness that the sagging muscles of her neck made grotesque and pathetic.

She thrust her feet quickly across the threshold. Nora Lee swung the door wide.

She said, waspishly: "I may enter today, may I?"

"Yes. There is no one here you can hurt."

"Oh—" she swept past Nora Lee with a stiff gauntliness and sat near the fireplace. The embers glowed. "You mean to give up the bonds you didn't have, do you?"

Whose Bonds?

"What bonds are you speaking about, Mrs. Stewart?"

"My bonds!"

Nora Lee smiled in a puzzled, gracious way. "I have no bonds belonging to you."

"You little liar! Give them up this minute or I'll have you arrested for holding stolen property. I have the report of the police department that you admit having my $15,000.

Nora Lee shook her head. "You're mistaken."

"Do you mean to deny that you cashed a bond numbered—let me see—" She opened her purse and snapped out a small card, reading off the number. . . .

"Why, yes, I cashed that bond, but it was mine. I had a right to cash it."

"I'll have you arrested!"

"I don't think I'll worry about that, Mrs. Stewart. Because if you have me arrested I can prove you're wrong and then you'll get arrested for bringing false charges."

Charges, Threats.

"You stole those bonds. They belong to me. I mean to have them."

"You'll have to prove I stole them. But I can prove that they are mine. They are a clear gift from their owner."

"You dare to stand there and say my husband gave you those bonds?"

"Yes. Andrew owned the bonds and he gave them to me."

"Don't you dare call my husband 'Andrew.' You call him Mr. Stewart."

Thrilling Romance of the Revolution

By PAUL LEICESTER FORD

Author of "The Honorable Peter Sterling," "The Story of an Untold Love," etc.

"AND the information ye have furnished me concerning this region has proved his opinion as to your knowledge, disposition and ability."

This sent the squire to his pillow with a delightful sense of his own importance, and led him to confide to the nightcap on the pillow beside him that "Mr. Evatt is a man of vast insight and discrimination." Regrettable as it is to record, the visitor, before seeking his own pillow, mixed some ink powder in a mug with a little water and proceeded to add to a letter already begun another paragraph.

It is described the district roundabout Brunswick and declared that the two members of the gentry were opposed to the small farmers and laborers and could not rely upon their tenantry for more than a nominal support. He recommended a liberal sprinkling of soldiery throughout the country.

Though the visitor was the last of the household abed, he was early astir the next morning, and while Charles was beginning his labors of the day, by leading each horse to the trough in the barnyard, Evatt joined him.

"We made a bad start at our first meeting, my man," he said, in a friendly manner, "and I have only myself to blame for it. One should keep his own secrets."

"'Tis a sorry calling yours would be if many kept to that," replied Fownes, with a suggestion of contempt.

Evatt bit his lip, and then forced a smile. "The old saying runs that three could keep a secret if two were dead."

Charles smiled. "My two will never trouble me," he said meaningly, "so save your time and breath."

"Hadst best not be so sure," retorted Evatt, in evident irritation. "'Twixt thine army service, the ship that fetched thee and that miniature, I have more clues than have served to ferret many a secret."

"And entirely lack the important one. Till you have that, I don't fear you. What is more, I'll tell [illegible] what 't is."

"What?" asked the man.

"A reward," sneered Fownes.

"I am [illegible] to [illegible] with," said the man. "But it [illegible] choose [illegible]." The [illegible] checked himself as Janice [illegible] through the opening in the [illegible] and the two [illegible] silently watched her as she approached.

"Charles," she said when within speaking distance, while holding out the miniature, "I've decided you must take [illegible]."

Charles [illegible] pleasantly. "Then 't is yours [illegible] to make me, Miss Meredith," he [illegible], folding his arms.

"Won't you please take it?" begged Janice, [illegible] a little nonplussed by his [illegible] and that Evatt should [illegible] of it. "We know it belongs [illegible] and 't is too valuable for [illegible]."

"How know [illegible]" questioned the man, still [illegible] pleasantly.

"Because I [illegible] your clothes when you [illegible] morning," said Janice, frankly.

"Miss Meredith," [illegible] Charles, "the word of a [illegible] if a bond servant [illegible] have [illegible], but I swear to you [illegible] never belonged to [illegible]. I therefore have no claim to it [illegible] gives you any [illegible] with it."

"That is no good in saying ye stole it," [illegible] Evatt.

Charles [illegible].

"'All are not thieves whom dogs bark at,'" he quoted; "nor are all of [illegible]," he added, as, turning, he lead away the horse toward the stable.

"Yon fellow doesn't stickle at calling ye names, Miss Meredith," said Evatt.

"He has no right to call me a spy," cried the girl, indignantly.

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a stenographer of eighteen and have been corresponding with a young man one year my senior. His letters have all been friendly. But lately he has spoken of love and asked me to marry him after six years. I know this young man loves me. Please give me your advice.

DO you love the young man? Otherwise, of course, do not make such a promise. And even if you do love him, don't you consider six years too long an engagement? I do.

I suggest that you ask the man to be a friend for several years. Meantime do not devote all your time and thoughts to each other but enjoy the companionship of all your friends. At the end of four or five years, if he still loves you, there will be time to announce a formal engagement and marriage.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I went out with a man ten years my [illegible] a few times. As I found out that I do not love him I wrote to him, asking him not to try to see me again, giving some minor reason. Thereupon he told my girl friend, who told me, that he was very down hearted.

I took pity on him and went out with him again. He informed me that he almost wanted to kill himself for not being allowed to see me again. But I feel I cannot love him and am afraid to tell him this for fear he may do some harm to himself. I [illegible] him.

Please tell me how I can end this affair without hurting him too much.

H. H.

UNLESS [illegible] is likely to be [illegible] by you as a mere [illegible] acquaintance or at most as one among many of your friends, take a firm stand and refuse his invitations. It is better to be bluntly honest now than to hurt him more deeply later on.

This does not mean that you need be unkind. But feeling as you do, persist in refusing all invitations. He himself makes it necessary for you to take this stand by assuming the attitude of a sweetheart rather than that of a friend.

Mike Is a Great Help to His Mother

By Foxy Grandpa

"I'M getting awfully hungry," said Bobby the day before Thanksgiving as we rolled in my car out into the country.

"Glad I put a radish in my pocket," chipped in Bunny.

"I tell you what we'll do," said I. "We'll stop at the next farmhouse and see if we can't get lunch there."

"Fine!" shouted Bobby. "There's one now—right up this hill."

We rolled up the hill and turned into the gate of the farmhouse and drove in. Two big dogs came out and barked at us, and then the door opened and a nice-looking woman came out, holding her apron in one side.

"Good morning," said I. "Can we get dinner here?"

"If you don't mind taking pot luck," said the farmer's wife, smiling and standing aside for us to pass in.

We sat down with the farmer and his family, and when I got up from the table I had to let out my belt three holes.

Then we sat down on the porch for a moment. As we sat there Bunny said:

"I wonder if he feels nervous with tomorrow Thanksgiving?"

For there was a big turkey gobbler strutting around the yard.

"Fine turkey," said I to the farmer, who sat with us smoking his pipe.

"Yes," said the farmer. "Mike's a fine bird."

"I suppose he's fattened up now, all ready for Thanksgiving."

"I'll tell you," began the farmer. "We've had Mike so long that he is a pet. And he's rather useful, too."

"Tell me about him," I begged.

"It was like this," continued the farmer. "Several years ago Mike was hatched out with nine other little turkeys. The weather was inclement and the nine others died."

"Too bad," I said.

"Yes," went on the farmer, "that was bad luck. Mike was the only one left. So you can see why his mother took such great care of him.

"That mother turkey never left Mike. She followed him everywhere, even when he was a full-grown bird, and he followed her like a baby. It was a funny sight.

"One day I put some more eggs under the mother, and she commenced to set.

"Now—would you believe it?—Mike thought he had to set, too, just because his mother was setting!

"So what did Mike do but wiggle around by his mother as she sat on her nest until he moved three of her eggs under him. And there that turkey sat until he hatched out his three little turkeys!

"Then we gave Mike eggs of his own when his mother sat, and we've never killed him—didn't have the heart to."

"Oh, Foxy Grandpa!" whispered Bobby to me. "I know some boys just like him. It isn't their fault. It's because their mothers bring them up just like girls."

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

I FELT shut out of things, but I was too worn out to protest. Nor did I try to break the silence in which Jim and I drove to the station after our good-night to Pat. Even on the train we did very little talking, but when we reached our apartment, after a trip which seemed interminable, Jim said in a tone of command:

"Come into the living room, Anne. I've a final word to say to you."

"You want me to desert Mabel?" I asked.

"You know I'm not asking that," replied Jim.

"But you don't want me to help her get her divorce?" I insisted, bound to have Jim's prejudices fully defined.

"You keep out of that!" began Jim in a tone of thunder. Then he pulled himself together and added courteously: "Can't you see that it would be terrible to drag us all into this?"

"You don't want me to try to help her locate Bonnie Buchanan so she can begin divorce proceedings?" I continued dully.

"Certainly not."

"Perhaps you'd even go so far as to ask me—not to see Mabel," I suggested, with a cold fear at my heart.

Jim's eyes met mine. There was a hidden message in them. And with the sudden leap of an old fear, I realized what he was indicating when he said in a slow, carefully stressed tone:

"Neither of us has a right to dictate to the other regarding the—people we see and like. Of course, you won't ask me to have much to do with the friends of whom I do not—approve. But I won't ask you to give up—any one you want to see. And you must be equally generous—always."

And I bowed my head in agreement. I realized that by this indirect method Jim was telling me that he intended to resume his friendship with Ruth Gregory.

"Of course you'll see the friends—you enjoy," I managed, after a long silence which Jim waited curtly for me to break.

"Quite so," said Jim dryly, getting up and limping across our living room to the table where the cigarette box stood.

Suddenly Jim flung down an unlighted cigarette and turned to face me with something set and purposeful in his face. My heart began thumping.

"Haven't you begun to see how inevitable it is for husband and wife to have separate interests?" Jim asked abruptly and in a tone of philosophical generalization quite unlike his usual method of speech.

"But don't you believe in their sharing all they can?" I asked.

"Yes—all they can," agreed Jim. "But no amount of love makes two minds one. And as I've said, I don't have to see folks because they interest you—or visa versa."

"You don't have to—unless you like to," I suggested. "But I'm I'm ready to share—all I can—with you."

"Well—I'm not." Jim flung at me with brutal abruptness. "I don't want to have anything to do with Mabel and Park. You do. That's clear enough, isn't it?" demanded Jim.

"There doesn't seem anything more to say about it," I agreed.

"And you take it for granted that I'll leave you alone to follow your inclination, don't you?"

"That's only fair, isn't it?" I replied.

"Don't equivocate," Jim said sternly. "You wouldn't stand for any [illegible] or forbidding on my part.

RED PEPPER FOR COLDS IN CHEST

Feel a Bad Cold Loosen Right Up When Rowles' Red Pepper Is Used

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints relief comes at once.

The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles, just get a jar of Rowles' Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known.

RED PEPPER RUB

COLDS

Stop sneezing, snuffling and coughing. Just take one or two tablets of Anti-Kamnia and the cold quickly goes. Anti-Kamnia almost instantly banishes pains of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, headaches, toothache; brings relief from insomnia, nervousness, women's pains, etc. Has been sold every day for 34 years by druggists everywhere. The daily demand proves its merit. 25 millions used annually. The genuine pain reliever, Anti-Kamnia, has AK on every tablet.

Use AK Tablets
Anti-Kamnia
OPPOSED TO ALL PAIN

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made syrup.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the throat tickle and heals the irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

'SOFT' JURORS DEMAND CRITIC BE PUNISHED

Foreman John F. Cullen and his entire jury, which last Friday found two defendants in the Suffolk County Superior Court guilty of manslaughter when they were on trial for first degree murder, are still up in arms over the remarks of Assistant District-Attorney George Alperts, who scored the jury as "soft." They demand that he be held in contempt of court because of his remarks.

In a letter to the Boston American, Foreman Cullen bitterly arraigns the assistant district attorney, declaring he is "inexperienced," and in general passed the blame on to Alperts. The letter was written by Cullen and signed by him. He also signed the letter for all the members of the jury, who are incensed over the remarks of Alperts.

JURY SIGNS PROTEST.

The jurymen in the case whose names were signed as protesting against the remarks of Alperts are: Aubrey W. Falls, No. 76 West Broadway, South Boston; Wesley Carpenter, No. 1 Pine terrace, Hyde Park; John J. Flynn, No. 31 Dale street, Roxbury; Edward F. Henmann, No. 311 Roxbury street, Roxbury; James J. McKenna, No. 29 Washington street, Boston; Thomas Powers, No. 73 Olney street, Dorchester; Frederick H. Schlichting, No. 80 Wyman street, Dorchester; Edward F. Staples, No. 74 F street, South Boston; William Doyle, No. 26 Shawmut street, Chelsea; John Van Etten, No. 53 Mapleton street, Brighton, and Cullen, who is an architect in the Province Building, Washington street, Boston.

Speaking of the statement of Alperts in which he declared that "you can get literally away with murder in Suffolk county," Mr. Cullen said: "I agree with Mr. Alperts that this statement of his is true and will be true as long as the Commonwealth allows prosecution to be handled by men of Mr. Alperts' 'inexperience.'"

Mr. Cullen then pointed out that Alperts "slipped a cog" in his examination of Corrine Moate, who was supposed to have been a witness in the case. The case in question was the trial of Walter Jennings and Edward Sheafe, two negroes, charged with the murder of Joseph Duarte in the Albion Cafe on Albion street.

ACTED ON EVIDENCE.

"It is the duty in all court procedure for the attorneys for the prosecution and the defence to produce the evidence for the judge to instruct the jury in the points of the law and for the jury to make its decision upon the facts of the case thereby obtained.

"The penalties for first and second degree murder are great. No man has a right to take the life of another unlawfully. No man has such a right even though he should be the district attorney himself."

Taking up another remark of the assistant district attorney in which he stated, "If the statutes of the Commonwealth designed for the protection of the public are not to be sustained by juries, justice becomes a mockery." Mr. Cullen takes another blast at Alperts.

"Mr. Alperts' manners and attitude might be regarded as childish and to be disregarded really if it were not that 'justice becomes a mockery' while our (the public's) protection is allowed in the hands of such statues of the Commonwealth designed for our protection such as Mr. Alperts. Mr. Alperts is a good statue," continued Cullen, "makes a good appearance and a fine address, but he has a few missing links in his law ability.

INEXPERIENCED, HE SAYS.

"For a jury of twelve intelligent, thinking men to find a guilt of murder the evidence must be proven beyond all reasonable doubt. This was not done. Mr. Alperts did not produce this in the court, although I will not say that he might not have it in his own possession. His inability to prosecute may be attributed to his inexperience and his lack of knowledge of the law in regard to murder.

"I believe that the Commonwealth, in order to stop this wave of crime which Mr. Alperts wishes to predict, should obtain the services of the most efficient lawyers to prosecute in all capital cases.

"The Suffolk County jury in this case was the court and Judge Lourie has been requested to find Assistant District Attorney Alperts to be in contempt of court."

IRON CASHIER MAY REPLACE PRETTY GIRLS

A machine which was placed in operation in the Maverick station of the East Boston tunnel today started to click off the epitaph of the pretty girl cashiers.

It is an automatic cashier, which makes change and collects and records fares.

And don't try to pass off any bad coins or slugs on it either!

If you do it will jolly well chuck them right back at you.

Daniel L. Chandler of Boston devoted three and a half years to perfecting the device. He asserts it will not only revolutionize the fare collecting system but will eventually find its way into theatres and other places where a pay-as-you-enter system is in force.

"TWIN BIGAMIST" SAYS HE MADE UP STORY

Camden, N. J., Nov. 26 (I.N.S.)—The "twin brother" romance in a wartime setting related to police by John H. Morgan when arrested on a bigamy charge as an explanation of his dual life was placed in the fiction class today when Morgan admitted, Assistant Prosecutor Joseph A. Varbalow said, that the story was a fabrication. Morgan is held in $2,000 bail here, charged with having two wives, one in Philadelphia and the other in Woodcrest, N. J., where he lived under the name of Robert J. Crofton.

TABLET TO HERO STOLEN

Disappears From the William J. Barry Playground in Charlestown

Somebody stole a bronze tablet erected to the memory of William J. Barry, Charlestown war veteran, at William J. Barry Playground in that section, today, and all Charlestown is stirred up.

A few weeks ago the tablet was in position, where it was established on June 17, 1922, when the playground at Medford and Chelsea was changed in name from the Mystic Playground to William J. Barry Playground.

James C. Barry, uncle of the war hero and chief marshal at the dedication exercises, visited the playground recently. A small building on which the tablet was fixed had disappeared. So had the tablet.

The Park and Recreation Department officials of Boston professed ignorance of its whereabouts. No authority had been given to remove the tablet.

Custodian Crowley of the playground was transferred temporarily to another post and it was in his absence that the tablet vanished.

A few weeks ago work of enlarging the playground was begun and a block of houses was torn down. At the same time the building disappeared.

Now Bunker Hill Post No. 26, American Legion, has taken up the hunt and will wait on Mayor Curley in an effort to solve the mystery and recover the tablet.

LYNN'S MAYOR STANDING BY PROMOTER

Conflicting statements, coupled with the reported disappearance of a document from the Secretary of State's office, featured today's revelations of the activities of Charles V. Knightly, ex-convict and promoter of Lynn's $7,000,000 industrial expansion project.

The missing document is a petition, said to have been signed by a high official in the State, asking Knightly's appointment as a Justice of the Peace.

The appointment was made December 17, 1919, but the commission was revoked by order of Governor Coolidge and the Executive Council December 1, 1920.

PETITION MISSING.

When a request was made to see the petition, Charles A. Southworth, executive clerk of the Council, reported that it had disappeared.

With the denial by Mayor Harland A. McPhetres of Lynn that he had repudiated Knightly, and the declaration he had evidence the promoter was not Willard C. Johnson, reported secretary of the Seaboard Engineering Company, the mystery surrounding the Johnson deepened.

Despite the fact the real Willard C. Johnson has been ill at his home in Arlington, N. J., for three years and confined to bed for months, a man giving that name telephoned Mayor McPhetres Monday.

At the time that call was made a Boston American representative was in the Mayor's office and Knightly was in the anteroom. The man who telephoned stated he would not go to Lynn for a week, because of the publicity which Knightly had received.

ASKED POSTPONEMENT.

He asked that the hearing of the Commission on Ways and Drainage on the plan to transfer a brook from the middle of Blakeley's Field where the housing plan was to be initiated, be postponed.

The other Johnson is George A., an engineer, of No. 150 Nassau street, New York. This Johnson, who is known personally to Mayor McPhetres, was nominated by him to draw plans for the $1,500,000 sewer change for which bonds were authorized by the Lynn City Council. Johnson's nomination was rejected.

Mayor McPhetres said today that Knightly had no connection with the outfall sewer proposition at the time it was initiated.

"The report that I have repudiated Knightly is false," he said. "I still think Knightly's plan is a good one.

"I have received three letters from Willard C. Johnson, secretary of the Seaboard Engineering Company. It is impossible that he and Knightly should be one and the same.

DENIES HE DELIVERS MILK

Illness Led Him to Become Consultant for Large Company

Dr. Arthur A. Howard, one of the city's most widely known child specialists, in an executive position for the past decade in leading Boston hospitals, today branded as "the lies of paid stool pigeons" statements that he had dropped from the peer of local medical men to the capacity of a "milkman, delivering milk from door to door."

Dr. Howard, former physician-in-chief of the Boston Dispensary, on the staff of the Massachusetts General Hospital, the Children's Hospital, Floating Hospital, Infants' Hospital, and organizer of the Baby Hygiene Association, as well as professor of medicine at Harvard for ten years, declared he had dropped out of his professional life for a short time, due to illness.

"NEVER WAS MILKMAN."

Dr. Howard, who is at present medical adviser to a large milk company, declared in an exclusive statement to the American that he had returned to his profession and was at present consultant to the leading pediatricians of the city.

"I never was a milkman and I never expect to be," laughed Dr. Howard. "I removed my offices from Bay State road a few months ago, but shall open them up again as soon as I shall have time to devote to a private practice."

Dr. Howard appeared in the Norfolk County Probate Court recently where he was summoned to answer charges of failing to pay alimony to his divorced wife, Edith P. Howard. Dr. Howard described the misfortune which had followed him, in the shape of illness and financial difficulties, which he declared had caused him to fall behind in payment of alimony allowed his wife.

"My connection as medical adviser to a local milk firm has nothing whatever to do with my professional position as a consultant physician," says Dr. Howard.

"You will find me on the Physicians' Exchange in the Back Bay and any pediatrician in the city will tell you whether my prestige has decreased within the past few years, afflicted as they have been, by personal vicissitudes.

DENIES INTOXICATION.

"My advisory capacity to the milk concern follows a long period of attention to infant feeding, familiar as I am with this branch of my work.

"It was at the request of my fellow physicians that I returned more actively to my past work. They called me for consultation work, and I have placed myself again at their disposal."

Mrs. Howard, in petitioning for the payment of back alimony, declared her social status had dropped as the result of the doctor's semi-retirement from his work.

Dr. Howard declined to comment upon the testimony of a witness that he had been seen intoxicated. "Drunk? Never in my life! A doctor can't afford to be," says Howard.

PRISON INMATES WILL CELEBRATE HOLIDAY

Thanksgiving Day will be observed at the Charlestown State Prison by the [illegible] inmates, the largest number at the institution since the years before the war. The inmates will suspend all work.

In the forenoon there will be a motion picture entertainment in the prison auditorium, followed by a half hour of liberty in the prison yard.

At noon a dinner, consisting of roast pork, potatoes, boiled onions, bread and coffee, with a whole mince pie to each and two cigars the gift of Colonel Walter Scott, of New York, to top off the meal, will be enjoyed by everyone.

ANCIENTS PLAN DANCE IN FULLER'S HONOR

Plans for the inauguration ball which will be given in honor of Governor-elect Alvan T. Fuller at the Copley-Plaza by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company were discussed at a meeting in the armory in Faneuil Hall. Mr. Fuller is a member of the company. Captain George H. Hudson, past commander, was elected a member of the finance committee to take the place of the late Colonel Sidney M. Hedges. Resolutions on the death of Colonel Hedges were adopted.

THE ATTITUDE OF THANKFULNESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

AFTER all, thankfulness is not a matter of fact; it is a matter of discipline. It is an attitude toward life.

There is no good going over a list of things to count those that we should be thankful for; it is easy enough for those who are not thankful to make a list of those things they are disappointed in.

When you tell a man he should be thankful and then enumerate the reasons why, you are competing with his imagination and you are sure to be beaten.

If one goes through life with a feeling that he deserves nothing, whatever he gets will be a beautiful surprise to him.

That is why so many people are continually happy. They do not think they should have anything and consequently whatever they get is that much extra.

When you find, on the contrary, a selfish egoist who thinks that he should have everything, whatever he gets is a disappointment.

If you think you should be hung by a halter, says Carlyle, to be hung in hemp is a privilege.

After all, what we call happiness is not a thing in itself. It is a relation between two things. It is what we have, divided by what we think we ought to have.

Those who have a thankful disposition, that is those who think they continually get more than they deserve, are apt to be cheerful. They are pleasant people to know and to do business with. Those, on the contrary, who think they never get their deserts, and who always find the actual falling below the ideal, are disgruntled and unhappy.

It all depends therefore, upon ourselves, and our opinion of our deserts. There are those to whom the world is a continual delight and surprise. Every day is a new disovery of new blessings. They are in a continual state of happiness.

This is not because they are any better off than other people but because the value of the common fraction is greater. That is, the denominator of what they think they ought to have, is continually greater than what they do have.

Blessed, says the proverb, are they who want nothing, for they shall be satisfied.

WALTER JOHNSON IS BASEBALL DOUBLE-CROSS VICTIM

INSIDE OF BALKED DEAL

Washington, Nov. 26.—Walter Johnson will play baseball in a Washington uniform next season. His chances of playing or managing any other place are 1 to 1,000. In fact, despite his dickerings with George Weiss for the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League, his chances of leaving Washington have never been better than that ratio.

Inside stories circulating through sporting circles in the national capital are responsible for these statements. Three or four stories are going the rounds and none of them are complimentary to Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, the man who was "made" by Walter Johnson.

Clark Griffith

Those who have heard these stories and know Griffith realize that despite Griff's protestations and apparent anxiousness to aid "Barney," Johnson would leave the Washington club only over Griff's dead body.

BUSINESS MAN FIRST.

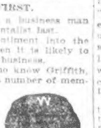
He tosses his sentiment into the Potomac River when it is likely to interfere with his business.

Sporting men who know Griffith, and these include a number of members of the exclusive Racquet Club who are prominent in the social and business side of Washington, merely grin sarcastically when some fan mentions the probability of losing the great pitcher. They know that some unseen hand will balk his every move to quit the league.



Walter Johnson

The story which has gained most currency runs something like this:

Johnson and Weiss approached a wealthy Eastern man last Summer with their proposition to buy in on the Pacific coast. This man is independently wealthy, owns a string of race horses which he runs for pleasure more than profit, and was easily in a position to advance the necessary cash.

BACKER CALLED OFF.

After a month he wired Johnson and Weiss that everything was O. K., that he would lend them the money, taking a mortgage on the club and plant.

Upon receipt of this wire Johnson and Weiss are said to have gone through with the Oakland deal, paying $5,000 for an option and cleaning up their business affairs in the East.

The hitch didn't come until last Friday, when this eastern capitalist is said to have walked out on Johnson and Weiss.

The story has it that this man was approached by officials of the Washington club of the American League and asked to lay off. Probably the former. It was pointed out to him that the loss of "Barney" would ruin the Senators, make a fourth or fifth place club out of a world's championship aggregation and kill off approximately $200,000, a low estimate of what Johnson is worth at the league gate.

EXHAUSTED WOMEN QUICKLY RESTORED

COUNTLESS thousands of women must work day after day in their homes, in offices and stores who are really unfit for their tasks. With bodies exhausted and nerves overstrained, they must get through each day by will power alone.

Such women should not be content to drag on, making their sacrifices of health, strength and even happiness. They should begin at once the upbuilding of their bodies.

Weakened bodies can quickly be restored. Amazing improvement often is shown in just a few days. Signs of returning vitality soon appear.

Wincarnis gives to wasted bodies the very elements they must have to be nourished back to vigor. For fifty years this strength giver has reinvigorated weak, nervous, exhausted men and women.

If you are lacking in strength and your vital nerve force is failing, go to your druggist today and begin the safe Wincarnis treatment. A 12½ ounce bottle, which is a ten days Wincarnis treatment, is sold for $1.10 by all leading druggists. Double size, $1.95. ## ALVAREZ SURE HE WILL UPSET STASIAK

With the stage all set for the Thanksgiving night wrestling show at the Grand Opera House, the ten different grapplers that are to compete are fit.

Joe Alvarez, the Panama champion, is in wonderful condition for his bout with Stanley Stasiak. Speaking of the bout last night, Joe said: "I beat Stasiak last year when everyone in Boston thought he was unbeatable. This year I am heavier and better. I want a bout with Lewis for the title, and the quickest way to get it is to beat Stasiak. You can say for me that I am ready and I expect to win."

Stasiak realizes that Alvarez is a tough man and is training hard at the gym as well as doing a lot of road work. He wants to keep his slate clean this year and he figures that a setback at the hands of Panama Joe right now would be a big handicap to his future plans.

Fans from Wakefield are turning out in numbers to cheer for their favorite Miss Louise Gardner in her finish match with Miss Cora Livingston, the Champion Lady Wrestler of the World.

George Farmer Bailey comes down from Brattleboro, Vermont, to meet Chief Montour, Indian champion. These men are of equal build, and fans have been asking that this pair be matched as the two heaviest wrestlers in New England.

Sam Skorsky, the Chelsea Giant, has a large following that will turn out to see him in his match with Lawson Pinkham, the Attleboro Giant. This will be Sam's first appearance as a professional.

In the other bout Frank Yusko and Fred Lurich will settle who is who so far as the Lithuanian championship is concerned. Leon Burbank will referee all the bouts.

DANNY KRAMER FIRST IN LINE FOR FEATHER TITLE

New York, Nov. 26. — Danny Kramer, formerly of Boston, of Philadelphia, has only one man to conquer to annex the featherweight boxing crown relinquished by Johnny Dundee, but he will not collect a semi-final round purse. This was decided at the offices of the State Athletic Commission when Kramer's manager drew a bye, leaving Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden and Jose Lombardo of Panama to fight for the right to meet the Philadelphian.

Kaplan and Lombardo will meet December 12 and the final bout will be staged three weeks later.

GIVE YOUR MITE NOW

EVERY day throughout the year the Sports Editor, good-natured man, is called on for favors.

Boxers drop in with photographs and records and request that public attention be directed to their prowess.

Golf organizations desire mention of their matches and tournaments.

Basketball teams want something said of them. Colleges request notice of their football and athletic activities.

Therefore, the Sports Editor feels that once a year he is entitled to ask one small favor of his petitioners.

It is that they take due notice of the Sports Department's end of the American's Christmas Basket Fund, the Fund that is devoted to feeding needy families.

It sends Santa Claus into many, many homes. A few dollars in money returns a million dollars in joy to some small child. It is the finest investment you can possibly make.

The Sports Editor says he feels confident that many of his regular correspondents haven't thought of the Fund.

He says his daily mail is as large as ever, and he opens it with eager anticipation, but the contributions to the Fund are not in proportion to the call on him for favors.

This, then, is his appeal:

SEND IN!

Help him make a real showing for the world of sport through the Sports Department's end of the Fund.

TOM GIBBONS FORSAKES HEAVYWEIGHT RANKS

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 26.—Announcement was made today by Tommy Gibbons that he will forsake the heavyweight ranks and go after the light heavyweight championship. Failure to obtain a return match with Jack Dempsey brought this decision, Gibbons said. He will leave Thursday night for his bout with Kid Norfolk in New York December 9.

J. B. GILLOOLY IS GIVEN FINAL TRIBUTE

"Gill" was buried today.

That was the name by which John B. Gillooly, late sports editor for the Boston American was known to everyone.

A concourse of mourners paid their last respects. Official life, the world of sports and every branch in the community was represented.

St. Ann's Church in Neponset was filled. It was a sad duty for the eve of Thanksgiving. It was a day on which "Gill" would have been making great preparations for observance of the holiday with his wife and six children at their cosy home on King street. That deepened the sadness.

With the last edition put away he would hurry home laden with flowers and candy and other good things for the "kiddies," as was his wont.

Instead, his host of admirers were gathering about his bier. No high official could have been shown greater reverence. Everyone loved "Gill."

The throng of mourners and the abundance of floral offerings but feebly expressed the widespread grief.

Solemn high requiem mass was celebrated at 9 o'clock. The Rev. Francis E. Foley was celebrant, the Rev. John T. Hennessy, deacon, and the Rev. Mr. Matthews, instructor of the class at Boston College in which the eldest son of the deceased is a student, acted as sub-deacon. The altar boys were classmates of John B. Gillooly, Jr., and his class attended in a body.

IMPRESSIVE MUSIC PROGRAM.

The music was impressive. Burial was in the family lot in Old Calvary Cemetery, Forest Hills. The service at the grave was conducted by the Rev. Father Foley, assisted by the Rev. Father Matthews.

The pallbearers, all office mates of "Gill," were Alfred L. Southwick, Malcolm Lunn, Jack Conway, Coleman King, George Grimm, James Murphy, Nick Flatley and Bert Ford.

PRO HOCKEY TO MAKE DEBUT TOMORROW

Boston will see its first professional hockey match tomorrow night at the Arena, where the Boston Bruins, new members of the National Hockey League, will meet the Saskatoon Sheiks of the Western Canada League.

Boston's chances to win took a decided boost today when Farmer Bill Cook of Vancouver reported to Manager Art Ross. For years Cook has been the backbone of Frank Patrick's Vancouver team of the Pacific Coast League.

Ross has been identified with the professional game too long to believe for a moment that his Bruins are tackling anything soft in Newsy Lalonde's Saskatoon team.

Saskatoon has just won two out of three games from the world's champion Canadiens, grabbing Monday night's final and deciding game, 4 to 2. In the three games with the champions Lalonde stressed offensive tactics. This style completely bewildered the Canadiens, who were not ready for such dashing tactics.

4,000 Praying Men

Men, unlike women, seldom pray in public. Perhaps a foolish kind of so-called manly superiority causes them to try to conceal their real emotions and the religion which is way down deep in the heart of each of us.

Consequently it was a wonderful, as well as an unusual sight, when 4,000 men at the Commercial A. C. boxing show stood with bared heads and offered their prayers for the soul of John B. Gillooly, sporting editor of the Boston American. A silence greater even than that of the grave gripped all in the audience as they remained silent for a minute and breathed forth their prayers for one, as Frank Ducey expressed it, "who had been champion of clean sport all of his life."

Commissioners Buckley and Lane of the Boxing Board were responsible for this great demonstration of the love of the sporting public for Mr. Gillooly. Some of the reformers who in the past have made misguided attacks on the boxing game should have dropped into Mechanics Building as that great gathering of men from all the walks of life prayed with the fervor of missionaires in a foreign field.

GOTHAM STARS MEET 'SAINTS' TOMORROW

The St. Alphonsus eleven tackles its hardest assignment of the year tomorrow afternoon at the Brookline Town Field, playing the Mission A. A. of New York at the Fenway. The invaders are composed of former college stars and have made their mark this year in semi-professional ranks.

A year ago this New York eleven cleaned up all comers and have done the same to date. Last Sunday was their closest call when they tumbled the Jersey City Pros, 7-0. St. Alphonsus has lost but one game in eight starts, the Neponset Wanderers being the fortunate eleven to carry away a win.

The Mission team brings with it Gervante, the comedian of the gridiron; Billy Butler, former Cornell star; "Speedy" Boeppel, Ohio State all-America quarterback, and Schneider, one of the fastest halfbacks in the ranks today. The remainder of the team is composed chiefly of ex-Fordham players.

The Saints rely on the strength of their massive line to hold the attacks of the New Yorkers. Farenkopfts, Koplow, Santosuosso, Tyler and Murphy are a quintet that will stand the attacks of any eleven. And with Morley and Hurley guarding the wings there should be little worry as to who will take care of the end runs. The Saints' offence is well taken care of by Cohen, Costa, Connell and the scrappy little quarterback, Le Cain. With these men on the field, Coach Walter Cleary feels optimistic as to the result of the struggle, one of the first interstate battles to be played in the semi-pro series.

MONTGOMERY KNOCKS OUT McCREARY

Former Grid Star Proves Right to Place in Fistic Sun

By JACK CONWAY

Sully Montgomery, former Centre College football star, displayed tremendous punching power when he knocked out Battling McCreary, world's colored light-heavyweight champion, in ten rounds at the Commercial A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building. Referee Joe O'Connor stopped the tussle after McCreary had been dropped to the canvas in the tenth frame. The Battler bravely struggled to his feet, but was not in any condition to continue festivities.

Montgomery gave one of the most spectacular exhibitions of punching ever seen in Boston. His tremendous right-hand socks crashed to McCreary's jaw all through the contest. They finally broke down McCreary's remarkable fighting spirit and gained for the former knight of the gridiron a brilliant victory.

ONLY IN GAME A YEAR.

The lanky Texan is not yet a finished boxer. This is to be expected, as he has only been boxing as a professional for a year. Any bird, though, who can punch like Montgomery is sure to batter his way out front in the fistic parade.

Montgomery won every round but the fourth and fifth. In these chapters, McCreary's infighting won for him an advantage.

It was one of the fastest heavyweight bouts seen in Boston in a long time. McCreary's willingness to mix things with his rival and Montgomery's mighty hitting power gave the fans a real battle.

EXPECTS QUICK RESULTS.

Montgomery is managed by Frank Churchill, who piloted Pancho Villa to the world's flyweight championship. Churchill considers Montgomery the best prospect in the heavyweight division and believes that in two years' time he will have wrested the world's heavyweight title from Jack Dempsey.

In the semi-final of ten rounds, Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo won a decision over Joe Jawson of Milwaukee.

Johnny Vacca of Newton outpointed Charley Baxter of Providence in eight frames, while Rocky Ston probably surprised even himself when he won from Joe Domingoes in eight sessions.

EAGLE AND PURPLE REST FOR SEASON'S CLIMAX

By NICK FLATLEY

BOSTON COLLEGE and Holy Cross have done their last strenuous work for the concluding gridiron explosion Saturday and the athletes will merely hold their palpitant breaths until the Braves Field engagement starts. [illegible]

THE Eagle windup with the [illegible] is always one of the season's best offerings. No matter what has gone before, the boys come into this scrap with fire in their eyes and all kinds of determination in their hearts. They go out to give everything they have and they always have plenty. For years we have been watching these pastimes [illegible] when the scores are [illegible] always a few [illegible]. If Boston College starts [illegible] Holy Cross decides to [illegible] frightens the Eagle [illegible]. When the Purple gets [illegible] the Eagle generally [illegible].

* * *

THE country's schedule provides no [illegible] test of the [illegible] athlete. [illegible] play hard football and [illegible] no bones about it. When they [illegible] each other the shock is felt in the stands and [illegible] hitting stiff from one whistle to the other. Not that they [illegible] roughness. They play clean football but they like the hard variety. And it's no secret that the crowds [illegible].

* * *

THE great enemies will go into this joust at practically even money. Early in the campaign Boston College looked like an odds-on bet, but the season's pastimes changed all that. The [illegible] Eagle was stopped early by Syracuse. Then when it seemed as if the team had developed into an unbeatable array [illegible] along and wrecked the dreams. Holy Cross was beaten by [illegible] played good early season football. The [illegible] brought [illegible] however in the Lehigh contest. The latter eleven is one of the very best [illegible] was lucky to get away with a tie. Holy Cross was right at the goal line when the scrap ended.

* * *

EACH team will be minus one regular. Harris, on the Eagle end, will not be present, while [illegible]ey, the Purple quarter, will be a [illegible]

CHUCK will have a flock of illustrious [illegible] Fanny of Holy Cross [illegible] kind of an All American team [illegible] Harold Ward could [illegible]. And so it goes all down the line. There are just as many stars in this game as there ever were [illegible]. Three racket! And there's always at least as much [illegible] football.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE WISHING WIFE

By BERTHA K. M'DONALD

"TED, dear, I can't sign a paper that would mortgage the bungalow to buy something that begins to depreciate as soon as it's ours."

"Then why not pay for the car by the [illegible]," the young husband argued, showing a trace of annoyance.

"[illegible] remember that we [illegible] never to buy [illegible] installment plan ex[illegible] I want a car, too, [illegible] to wait till we have [illegible] for it."

Polly's blue eyes filled with tears. "[illegible] down, Teddie, and [illegible] so much," she implored. "[illegible] know, honey, that we've always found that if we wished hard enough our wishes come true—sometimes even two-fold?"

Kissed Polly

Ted kissed Polly and hurried off to catch the 8:13 for the city. Because Polly knew that her adorably boyish husband, whom she simply had to look after, was on the verge of being angry with her, she sat down by her flowering window box and wept into the embroidered apron she wore. Ted had to have that car, and she had to find a way to help him get it.

It was while she was clearing away the remnants of breakfast that Polly's inspiration came to her. Ted had called her the most wonderful cook in the world. Why not commercialize this talent of hers! But how?

While she washed the handful of dishes and put the finishing touches on the immaculate bungalow, Polly thought and thought, and finally the inspiration grew into a real plan. For the next two hours practical Polly Poteat [illegible] kitchen [illegible]

[illegible] Ted [illegible]

When [illegible]

Gave Good Order

"I'm a drummer," [illegible] dimpling in a way drummers never do, "don't you think [illegible] be nicer to have fresh homemade things delivered to you twice a [illegible] than to get them from the [illegible] a little bit stale? Just taste [illegible] I've brought."

The young Greek tasted and then he gave Polly a very good order. Heartened by her first [illegible] Polly went the rounds of the suburbs, returning home an hour or so later with results that would have been considered satisfactory by a veteran salesman.

Without waiting to remove her hat, she dropped into the chair by her little desk and began figuring on the back of an envelope. The orders she had secured meant a profit of $3 a day, $18 a week. There were just twenty-six weeks before her wedding anniversary.

Four hundred and sixty-eight dollars [illegible] buy the road[illegible] for Ted [illegible] the Women's [illegible] Why hadn't she thought of that before? This very night she was to meet Ted for dinner and the theatre.

She could make two cakes and yet have time to take the 4 o'clock train. If she could [illegible] a week through the ex[illegible] taking two [illegible] that she met Ted, she could get together enough money for the roadster.

At dinner that evening Ted told her that she looked tired.

"The idea!" Polly smiled. "I've had the most successful day ever."

There were many times in the weeks that followed that Ted told Polly she looked tired. Often the sympathy proved almost more than she could stand, for sometimes she ached from head to foot with sheer weariness.

Hardest Part

The hardest part of the task, however, was keeping knowledge of it from Ted. In August she refused to go with him on his vacation, and that was hard to explain.

When Ted argued she said that she had no clothes and no inclination to get any; that she'd much rather have him go alone to one of those rough-it camps he loved but she detested. Finally Ted left her to work through the heat and to be a bit sorry for herself.

By Fall Polly knew that she was showing the strain and she wondered now and then if she could keep up the pace until the [illegible] of November—the day upon which she was [illegible] Ted. Then picturing Ted's [illegible] when he saw the car [illegible] the door, [illegible] figures in her [illegible] book and work at the [illegible].

At [illegible] in October Ted [illegible] down [illegible] he was trying [illegible] Polly [illegible] her to her feet.

Tried to Laugh

"Polly Poteat," he said, "you're looking almost ill. We're no nearer to that car than we were five months ago. You know if we bought the thing on the instalment plan, we'd pay for it some way. Then I could take you on some week-end trips that would bring back the color into your cheeks. What makes you look so tired, honey?"

Polly tried to laugh. "I'll promise to go away after our aniversary and rest," she said. "Ted Poteat, if you buy that car without money to pay for it, I'll never forgive you."

Then Ted stormed out of the room, and Polly could hear him pacing on the veranda.

After that, Ted began to have evening engagements. He could not even take Polly to dinner and the theatre on the appointed nights. At first Polly accepted his casual excuses without question.

Then she began to wonder if her excessive work was causing her to lose the power to interest Ted. It was certainly responsible for the fact that the meals she prepared for him were less attractive.

She wouldn't doubt Ted, however. That would be unworthy of her—of Ted.

Then came a week towards the end of November during which Ted did not [illegible] a single night until after ten and on Saturday morning phoned that he would have to remain that afternoon in the city. Polly left the telephone feeling wilted all over.

Car Ordered

Her savings had gone over the top, the car was ordered and would be delivered the following Tuesday, which was the anniversary; she had expected to frolic that afternoon with Ted.

Now, because she couldn't stay at home alone, she went to a distant suburb to spend an hour between trains with a friend.

The afternoon was utterly spoiled, however, when, looking through the friend's window, Polly saw Ted drive by in a shiny new car with a woman by his side.

She wouldn't doubt Ted; she mustn't, but what did it mean? Surely that evening he would explain. So she comforted herself all the long way home. When Ted came in, however, he was silent and distrait. That night, long after her husband slept, Polly sobbed silently into her pillow.

On Monday night Ted again came in late. Polly's eyes questioned, but her lips were silent. The next morning at breakfast Ted did not refer to the important day that had dawned, and Polly watched the window, fearing that the car would not be delivered before Ted left for the city.

Breakfast over, Ted took up the paper and seemed in no hurry to [illegible] Polly saw [illegible] to the door.

"Oh, Ted, [illegible] anniversary present [illegible]"

Polly [illegible] the door and down the path. "My present!" [illegible] "Where did that car come from?"

"I saved the money to pay for it," Polly [illegible].

"Oh, you poor little brick!" Ted said, and, seeming entirely unconscious of the car's shiny presence, took Polly in his arms and kissed her.

Up to the Curb

"And here comes yours," he said, pointing to a sedan that was drawing up to the curb. "I made the money for that after office hours selling others like it—and landed a job as district manager to boot. No more office grinding for me."

"Then, Mr. Manager, you can just sell this sedan to some one else and give me the money instead," Polly said, the tired look gone from her eyes. "Didn't I tell you that the kind of wishes we make come true two-fold and better?"

"Because they are working wishes, darling," Ted replied, kissing her again, brazenly unaware of the passing neighbors.

Not a Bite in House

Helping Hand Editor:

I am writing about an elderly woman in our neighborhood who is in great need. Her only support, a son, has just come out of the hospital and is in bad shape. She has the operation expenses hanging over her head and not a soul to bring in a penny. She is sickly herself. The woman hasn't a bite to eat in her house for over two months now. The neighbors have tried to help her out, but they all have big families. She needs a Winter coat, size 46 or 48, some underwear and shoes, size 6 or 6½ wide. Also if someone had a kitchen rocker or some dishes it would be a Godsend to her. Son needs an overcoat, large size. Please try and help her.

Lowell. MRS. H. R.

Clothes for Girl

Helping Hand Editor:

Please send me the name of some worthy person who could use these goods: One Winter coat for girl fifteen; four pairs all-wool girl's stockings; four pairs low shoes for girls, sizes 5-1; dress, size 38, black; one black blouse, etc.

C. H. E.

Many thanks. Mrs. B., mother of four girls, will be delighted with your offering. We have sent you her address.

Boys and Girls In Need

Helping Hand Editor:

Will you please give me some toys and some clothes for my children? My husband is sick and has just come home from the hospital and cannot work for three months. We need clothes and food and fuel, but if you can help me with the clothes and toys for the children for Christmas I can get the other things from the town. My children are two boys, five and four years old, and two girls, three and eight months. Please help us just this once.

MRS. A.

Widow Needs Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a poor widow, suffering from rheumatism, and would like to get some warm clothes, as I have not been able to do any work for the past year. Hope you will not forget me.

MRS. M. P.

Would Help Children

Helping Hand Editor:

Will you please send me the address of some poor mother of a large family, with little boys about five to seven and girl from seven to nine? I can help them with some second-hand suits and dresses, etc.

E. L. C.

Many thanks. Mrs. M. M., mother of eight children, two boys and a girl about the ages you mention, will appreciate these things.

Supports Mother

Helping Hand Editor:

I have been out of work for a long time and am the only support of my aged mother. I need a coat, size 44, and a pair of pants, waist 42. This will be appreciated with joy.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

MICE are getting so tough lately that the average house cat is now devoting his time to catching canary girds and goldfish.

CAPTURING goldfish is much cleaner sport as a cat doesn't have to chase them through cellars and rubbish cans.

A MOUSE is usually dirty, but a goldfish is always bathed.

THERE'S no work to it, either. All that a cat has to do is to stick his head in the bowl, open his mouth and the fish swim in.

BESIDES, a goldfish is more like a banana. It doesn't have many bones.

A CAT will spend two or three hours chasing a mouse and by the time she catches him he's too tired to eat.

NOT only that, but he gets so many calouses on his feet that the mice can hear him coming.

ONE woman who had a lot of mice in her apartment bought four Angoras and equipped them with rubber heels.

BUT the cats played her a mean trick; they used them for sneaking up on the canaries.

THE cats ate all her birds except one, and they won't get him because the dame has tied a bell around the canary's neck.

IT'S terrible when a woman has to put a burglar alarm on her birds.

IF she does this, they can call her every time teh cat comes near the bowl.

ONE woman tried to protect her goldfish by putting them under her pillow at night.

BUT she didn't get much sleep. The fish woke her up every time they turned over.

AND they happened to walk into a room where the cat was strolling.

SHE has one fish left and she's go-going to save him if she has to tie him in bed.

GOLDFISH and canaries are wonderful things to have around the house, but if you love pets it's better to get a horse and cow or some other kind of an animal that the cats won't kill.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.

Former President of the American Medical Association

I SOMETIMES think it is a sort of sacrilege for a scientist or a physician or a philosopher to try to analyze or dissect anything so sacred as courtship.

But courtship is a great fact, a great truth, and like all other great truths it may be made to serve as the very essence of things false.

It is very well, therefore, for those who are not in the blinding, deafening and benumbing throes of courtship to take some thought of it while the thinking is yet good.

There is a deep meaning underlying courtship. It is the period during which lovers really begin to know each other. This is the time when they discover each other's peculiarities—the period when they should adjust their differences, establishing in advance the harmony that is absolutely necessary to happy marriage.

This being true, it follows that every phase of the important question should receive consideration.

Physique, health, habits, tastes and tendencies even now generally come under more or less subconscious consideration. Fortunes, prospects, purposes and ambitions are likely to have some attention.

But the most important of all facts, under stress of popular but mistaken convention, are generally kept in the background.

The heritage represented by deeds and stocks and bonds locked in a safety drawer is of unquestioned importance.

But "deeds" done, possible diseases and vices, or, more happily, high efficiencies and honorable ambitions, all hidden away "in the blood," comprise an inheritance vastly greater in significance.

This is the particular kind of fortune concerning which until recently, it would have been considered offensive to ask and presumptuous to tender information.

But a change is already apparent in social usages.

The subject of marriage, especially in its relation to the great problem of heredity, may now, upon proper occasions, be discussed in the drawing room without violence to "good form."

The family newspaper and the magazines discuss the question without reserve.

The school teacher and the minister of the gospel are within the pale of propriety, when they consider it in their respective stations.

Clubs are formed, books are printed and lectures are delivered on this subject, all with not only the approval but the patronage of good society as well as good sense.

It is precisely against the usual conventional courtship that science is waging a campaign for the timely recognition of the law of heredity as one but not the only logical basis of wise marriage.

COMIC STRIPS ARE HELP TO BUSINESS

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

Happening to tune in on the clever orator who told us about the Boston American's popular comic strips over station WNAC, I was reminded that the comic strip, although a help to business, has never received due appreciation in this line.

Perhaps the comic strip has never originated a fashion, but it has kept many a one going long enough to prevent the retailer from having his stock left on hand, and it has popularized a good many fads in dress that might otherwise never have attained to the dignity of "fashion."

It is possible to cite another striking instance of the power of the comic strip. Melodies reached us from the well-known Sandwich Isles a few years ago, swept over the country with forest fire speed, accompanied by the ukulele, and then all fell into temporary oblivion.

The comic strip picked up the "uke" and, behold, it is with us again, popularized beyond what anyone would have been likely to forecast. Children cry for it for Christmas. "Big brother" starts his radio club meeting with it. It is literally "in the air."

Wall Street is looking for higher prices for bread in the United States as a result of the shortage of wheat in Europe.

The price of bread in France, it is stated, is the highest since 1883. According to reports in the financial district, Russia is bare of wheat, and England, France, Italy and Spain must come to the United States for their supplies.

Predictions now are that American wheat will sell at $2 a bushel, which would mean higher prices for bread here.

NEW HAVEN SHOWING FOR OCTOBER GOOD

New Haven made a good showing for October. For the past calendar month New Haven reports surplus after charges of $505,481, comparing with surplus of $568,483 in September and a surplus after charges of $254,851 in October, 1923. For ten months ended October 31, there was a surplus after charges of $1,875,798, comparing with deficit of $3,703,960 in the corresponding period last year.

GREAT ACTIVITY IN GERMANY IN COTTON

Advices from Berlin are that activity in the cotton mills of Germany is the greatest of any time since the close of the war.

Bremen added flavor to this by cabling "Good demand for American cotton. Germany's mills working 60 hours per week and operating about 97 per cent. of their spindles.

CRUCIBLE HAS 8-POINT GAIN IN NEW YORK

After a buoyant start, in which U. S. Steel sold at its peak price for seven years, with Corn Products at a record high, price movements developed considerable irregularity with heavy liquidation taking place in some of the popular industrials.

General Electric dropped 3 points, American Can 2½ and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Fisher Body 2 each. U. S. Steel common slipped back to 116⅝, where it met good support.

A subsequent rise in Crucible Steel, which soared 8 points to 73, a new high for the year, brought about a fresh demand for the other steel shares. U. S. Steel common rallying about a point from its low, while most of the independents showed moderate gains.

Special strength also developed in Typewriter stocks, some of the oils and Pittsburgh and West Virginia. Money renewed at 2½ per cent.

In Boston, Hood Rubber was up 2 points. Other changes were largely fractional, nearly evenly divided between gains and losses.

With a record crop of 38,480,000 bushels of potatoes in Maine the farmers of Aroostook County are facing a debt of $10,000,000 through low prices reigning this year.

Eat More Aroostook County Potatoes And Help the Minute Men of Maine

WHERE THE POTATO MEANS EVERYTHING

Buy potatoes!

Buy more potatoes!

Serve them on the table in greater quantity and in greater variety, for potatoes today are at rock bottom price and are better in quality than ever before.

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving Day. Be thankful for the ideal time to begin a money-saving program and today put in your Winter stock of tubers.

By eating more potatoes, New England housewives will save money, protect themselves from greatly advanced prices next year, and benefit materially the men whose industry and energy made possible this year's huge potato bonanza and the resulting low price.

Half a dozen years ago Aroostook County, Maine, was hailed as the richest county in the United States.

The potato farmers—bulwark of a one-crop land—had gambled and won. They were good winners.

This year they gambled and lost. And they are good losers, though harassed and in debt.

A record potato crop is that of Maine for 1924, totalling 38,480,000 bushels.

Of this total Aroostook County raised 85 per cent., or 32,708,000 bushels.

In 1916, as a comparison, the Aroostook tuber yield was only 16,000,000 bushels.

In 1921 Aroostook harvested 22,000,000 bushels, making, of course, for a lower price to the consumer.

So many potatoes has Aroostook raised this year, however, that the price has been hammered down until the farmer is losing money on every barrel he sells.

It is a bumper year, but when the decks are cleared away, the sole remaining fruit of the potato farmers' enterprise will be a $10,000,000 debt.

Not much in the way of reward for energy and industry!

On every barrel of potatoes raised and sold this year in Aroostook, the farmer is losing an average of seventy-five cents.

On the stock he is unable to sell, he loses $1.20 per barrel, representing the average cost of raising, picking and storing.

Under such a program, even the Minute Men of Aroostook might be expected to be downcast and gloomy.

They are not jubilant by any means, but they are "smiling through" in this crisis.

In the words of one potato man: "It would be worse if this were a blight, instead, and there were no potatoes. Then others would be hard hit with us, especially New England consumers."

How many men, struggling for life, will pause to give thanks that someone else is not in the same plight?

It is not engendered through short-sightedness or even through greed.

It is a misfortune of coincidence, solely.

By an accident of Fate, all the potato districts throughout the nation produced a bumper crop in 1924.

The total production of the country was 454,119,000 bushels, or 41,727,000 bushels more than last year's crop.

When demand is greater than supply, prices go up. When the supply is greater than the demand, prices go down.

They went down this year—rapidly. They went down until now the farmer is lucky to get back even a part of his original investment.

For the first time in the memory of Maine's potato farmers, it was necessary in 1924 to borrow money from the banks to pay diggers.

The loan put the farmers $1,000,000 in debt. Fertilizer concerns are creditors for the greater part of the remaining $9,000,000.

And on every barrel of potatoes the farmer sells, he loses another seventy-five cents.

If he doesn't sell them, he loses more. It's not easy for the Aroostook farmer to smile.

To New England's credit, all the potatoes consumed in this Northeast corner of the country, are home-grown products.

New England eats New England potatoes. If any tubers are shipped in here from other sections of the country, their amount is so small as not to be listed.

Other markets are in the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Pittsburgh districts.

In these last a victory over competitors throughout the country has been chalked up.

Handicapped through being the last section of the nation to harvest its potatoes, nevertheless Aroostook has made its mark in the distant markets through the better quality of its product.

But if you have ten apples on hand and are able to distribute only six of them to consumers—something must happen to the other four.

You might save them until tomorrow or next week or next year.

But tomorrow or next week or next year you will have ten more apples.

So, if the four extra are not to go to waste, somebody must eat more.

Such a situation confronts Aroostook County, where nearly two score million bushels of potatoes must be disposed of before they go bad or before another crop comes in.

There is only one alternative solution that the Minute Men of Aroostook can see to prevent a repetition of present conditions.

COMPARATIVE FOOD VALUE of the POTATO

This is to cut their crops next year in the planting season, so they will have only one-half to two-thirds as many potatoes to dispose of.

With a smaller crop, a better price will be realized and less expense will be entailed in raising.

Half a crop requires only half as much land and just half the amount of fertilizer.

Only half the number of diggers are required to pick up the potatoes and place them in barrels.

Just half the storage space is taken up and the freight bill for shipping to market is cut in two.

Everywhere along the line a saving in expense is made.

And everywhere along the line there is only one potato where two were before.

Thus the farmer is paid for half a crop practically what this year he gets for a bumper crop—and his expenses are only half.

But a smaller crop means higher prices all along the line. The Aroostook potato farmer is contemplating a move in self-defence, of retrenchment and of wisdom.

Confronted with the prospect—and an assured prospect—of heavy losses this year, the Aroostook farmers sought relief from the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad.

For years, the farmers have deemed the freight rate on potatoes from county points to Boston greatly excessive.

It costs the farmer from $1 to $1.40 a barrel to raise, pick and store his product.

In addition, there is a "warm car" charge, for potatoes must not be allowed to freeze.

Or, if a shipper desires, he may take any freight car and line it with spruce boards at his own expense—$100. Then he must supply a stove and a man to keep a fire going.

Potatoes compose the largest item on the B. & A.'s list of freight incomes.

For years, this road has been the only road in New England paying a regular dividend to stockholders.

When the potato farmers went to the railroad a few weeks ago seeking a freight rate reduction that their losses might be shaved somewhat, they were turned away.

A week ago, Brown & Co., New York bankers who controlled the B. & A., sold the controlling interest to Hornblower & Weeks of Boston.

Now the potato farmers say they have been milked that dividends might be paid to lure a buyer for the road.

To back their assertion that Aroostook is discriminated against in the matter of rates, the farmers cite the rate on empty bags.

From Boston to Houlton the rate on bags is 46 per 100-weight. But from Houlton to Boston, for some mysterious reason, the rate is $1.01.

Aroostook County will come out a loser on this year's endeavor, no matter how she figures.

Even if the potato farmer sells every tuber he has raised, he still will be heavily in debt, for every sale marks up a loss.

But his loss will be far greater if he is left with stock on his hands, for which he has paid out good money for labor and fertilizer.

His game now is to finish his losing race in the best manner possible.

Beaten, he is still striving.

All the world loves a winner and New England must stick by the plucky Aroostook Minute Men.

In doing so, New England will benefit its own pocketbook this year and protect against skyrocketing prices in 1925, by assuring the farmers that a large crop will be absorbed.

Therefore, eat more potatoes! They can be prepared in a score of ways you never have dreamed of before.

Search your cookbooks and discover a few surprises. Then surprise the potato farmer by taking all his product.

New England gets the best at the cheapest price.

"Aroostook is not going to smash, for we in Aroostook will not allow it," is the sentiment in the brave county.

Nor will New England allow it!
